LOS ANGELES, Feb. 6.—"Comb the dope dens of Hollywood!"
This terse order was issued today by Detective Captain David L. Adams, following a conference at police headquarters of all agencies working on the William D. Taylor murder mystery.

Although Adams would make no statement to the press, it was understood that a new clue had been received connecting the supposed slayer of the famous motion picture director with the operations of a well organized Hollywood "snowball" ring.

Launch Rigid Probe
Detective Sergeants Mailheau and Yarrow of the narcotics squad immediately left Captain Adams' office to launch a rigid investigation of the alleged dope peddlers and their operations.

In overcoat and muffler, with a cap pulled down over his forehead, George Milo, picture actor, strode up and down the sidewalk late last night in front of Westlake terrace court, the home of the murdered film director.

He was enacting, against his will,
a role he had often played for profit in the films—that of a "gentle heavy."

Woman Watches Actor
Eyes unseen by him looked over from shuttered windows in a bungalow across the court from Taylor's.

Mrs. Douglas MacLean, wife of the movie star, was trying to identify Milo as the man she saw leaving the bungalow where Taylor was murdered.

Meanwhile, in a closed automobile parked a short distance away, deputy sheriffs were firing questions at Henri Reineque, actor and friend of Milo.

The questions concerned the whereabouts of the two last Wednesday night.

The name of Mabel Normand, comedienne, again was bandied back and forth by the deputies in their quest for a clue to the mysterious murder.

On Telephone Tip
Milo and Reineque were taken into custody late last night as they were alighting from Milo's machine in front of the Lohan apartments on West Eighth street, where both live.

Officers traced Milo's automobile after a mysterious telephone message had been received at the sheriff's office to the effect that a sedan of certain make stood in front of Taylor's home on the night of the shooting.

The number and description given by the anonymous informant was that of Milo's machine.

The two actors made no protest as they were escorted to the sheriff's automobile and taken to the office, where Milo was told he was suspected of killing Taylor.

"That's a good joke. You really had me frightened for a while. I didn't know what you wanted me for.
But if that's it why—it's too ridiculous to do anything except laugh."

The officers were not satisfied with this denial. They bundled Milo into an automobile. He was taken to the South Alvarado street bungalow.

HARDING TO JOIN BONUS DISCUSSION

President To Meet Party Leaders In Debate On Ways and Means of Raising Funds.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—President Harding will discuss with administration leaders in congress at the White House late today the problem of deciding how the administration shall raise the funds to meet the soldier bonus.

The conference is called for 4 o'clock. Attending it will be Senator McCumber, chairman, and several members of the senate finance committee and Chairman Fordney and two members of the house ways and means committee.

Clubmen and those prominent in social circles in Santa Ana and Orange county today learned with keen interest that a marriage license was issued in San Diego this morning to Mrs. Oralee L. West of San Diego and John R. Porter, cashier of the National Bank of Orange.

Porter, familiarly known as "Jack" to his hundreds of friends in Southern California, is prominent in club and social circles, a member of the Orange County Country club, and is treasurer of the Orange County Bankers' association. He is a life member of the Santa Ana lodge of Elks.

Although plans for the wedding had been kept comparatively quiet, intimate friends of both Porter and Mrs. West had been informed that the happy event was to be solemnized in the southern city, where the Orange banker has been a frequent visitor.

Last Saturday, Porter told his associates at the bank that he expected to be absent from his duties today. The bank attaches suspected the nature of his week-end visit to San Diego, who were kept in the dark concerning the actual arrangements for the marriage.

Santa Ana friends said today that Porter told them last week that he intended to go south late Saturday, or early Sunday, and it was their belief that the marriage ceremony would be performed at San Diego or Corona some time today. Close friends from Santa Ana were expected to be present at the marriage.

Those to whom Porter confided his plans, said that the happy couple probably would arrive here late this evening or early tomorrow morning. Santa Ana social leaders who met Mrs. West while attending the recent bankers' convention held in San Diego described her as a woman of great personal charm and said that she had played a prominent part in social activities in the southern metropolis.

Club members and others who have known Porter intimately for many years today were planning a hearty welcome for Mr. and Mrs. Porter upon their return to Orange county. It was expected they would be at home to their many friends within the next few days.

attention of the commission to the statements of representatives of the utilities in the fight here on the King tax bill, in which it was said that values of their property had not increased but had decreased.

"Enemies of public regulation have endeavored to justify the increases above referred to by the claim that the King tax bill placed additional tax rates on their interurban or street railway, and the additional taxes on the telephone company because of the King tax bill, I am informed, do not amount to more than 2-1/2 cents per instrument per month—certainly no justification for the increase in rates approximately fifty per cent."

MRS. OBENCHAIN GOES ON TRIAL IN MIDNIGHT MURDER CASE

(United Press Leased Wire)
LOS ANGELES, Feb. 6.—The state will require six weeks to present its case of first degree murder against Madalynne Obenchain, accused of luring John Belton Kennedy to his death allegedly at the hands of Arthur C. Burch, deputy District Attorney Frick estimated today at the trial of the erstwhile collegiate co-ed opened.

"We have seventy-five witnesses to aid us in constructing our case," Frick asserted. Has 30 Witnesses Judd Rush, attorney for Madalynne said he would present thirty witnesses in her defense.

"I am not prepared to make public our plan of defense," Rush told the United Press.

"All we will say now is that Mrs. Obenchain knew nothing about the murder."

"Whether Arthur Burch committed the crime, I do not know. We will not attempt to bring an alibi for him into our case. That is a problem for Burch's own attorneys."

Burch Trial March 27 Burch will go to trial a second time in connection with the Beverly Glen tragedy on March 27. A jury in his first trial failed to agree.

Madalynne today heard Deputy District Attorney Asa Keyes demand of prospective jurors that she be hanged if they found her guilty of conspiracy with Arthur C. Burch in the murder of Kennedy.

Hundreds of curious persons gathered about the corridors of the hall of justice to watch the pretentious defendant as she entered upon the legal battle which holds her life in the balance.

Defense Loses Fight Her battery of attorneys, including Judd R. Rush, Alfred F. MacDonald and Ralph R. Obenchain, the latter her divorced husband, received an early blow in a battle of wits against the district attorney's forces.

Keyes successfully contended against a demand by Rush that the court dismiss the present jurors, who are held from the last panel, and draw 100 names in the new panel.

The first twelve names called were: Harry Hammond Beall, Albert A. Wallace, Alfred Bacon of Long Beach, Mrs. Della Berryman of Downey, Mrs. Ida Knapp, Joseph Maw, William H. McGill, Mrs. George R. Murdock, Thomas H. McMahon, Mrs. W. C. Bain, H. R. Kells, and Mrs. Sidney Selover.

Oppose Death Penalty The prosecution asked the first twelve called if any objected to the death penalty.

Wallace, Bacon, Kells, Maw and Mrs. Selover announced views in opposition to capital punishment and were instantly excused.

Substitutes called to replace them were Mabel F. Ocker of Glendale, Mrs. Adelaide Cooney, Mrs. Frank E. Norton, Mrs. John W. Monahan and Mrs. Elizabeth Seymour.

Madalynne Obenchain was beautifully gowned upon her appearance in court today.

CARDINAL RATTI

VETERANS IN HOUSE HAVE PLAN TO LAND BERGDOLL IN PRISON

By LAURENCE M. BENEDICT
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—A way has been found to bring Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, millionaire slacker, back to the United States for punishment, ex-service men in the house declared today.

Bergdoll is now reported to be hiding in Switzerland. He fled there for safety from Germany when peace relations were re-established between Berlin and Washington fearing that Germany, as the conquered nation in the war, would be forced to hand him over to the United States.

The veterans in congress, it was revealed exclusively to the United Press today, have been working secretly for weeks on both sides of the Atlantic on a plan to bring about the arch slacker's recapture.

Representative Walter Lineberger, California, is now in Europe, working out the plan there while his associates in the house are busy in Washington. They have finally determined upon a plan which they are confident will land Bergdoll in a United States federal prison to serve out the sentence he escaped when he made his sensational dash to freedom from Governor's Island a year ago.

What the plan is for apprehending Bergdoll, the veterans would not disclose. That is a secret, they declared, that they will reveal only to high officials of the department of justice and the state department and only to them after congress has passed a resolution directing those departments to go after the escaped slacker. The plan will not be completed, it is believed, until Lineberger returns from Europe which probably will be within a month.

Advantages Derived from Reading Advertisements

(A few days ago The Register offered $10 for the best short article giving account of actual experience in benefits derived from reading Register advertisements. The articles submitted in this contest will be published from day to day under this heading.)

I am quite a regular reader of the Mercantile advertisements in the Santa Ana Register.

I came to Santa Ana in the Spring, and soon thereafter began remodeling a house and fitting it up for a home.

Immediately I began to study the advertisements to see where I could find the best opportunities for buying house furnishings.

Soon a sale was put on at one of the leading hardware stores, and though it would be some time before I would need equipment for my kitchen, I visited this sale and purchased as nearly as I could tell what I would require—thereby saving a considerable amount—paid my bill and left my goods to be delivered when needed.

Some little time later a sale was staged at a first class furniture store, so I did the same thing, again saving quite a nice little sum.

CARDINAL RATTI OF ITALY WINS PAPAL HONORS IN CONCLAVE

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

ROME, Feb. 6.—Cardinal Ratti was today elected pope on the seventh ballot of the Sacred college. He will assume the name of Pope Pius XI.

The smoke signal from the vatican this morning was white and shortly afterwards it was announced Achille Cardinal Ratti, an Italian, had been elected to succeed Benedict XV.

Ratti was born at Milan in 1857. He was successively prefect of the Ambrosian library and of the vatican library in 1914. Ratti was created bishop of Lepanto in 1919. He was consecrated at Warsaw. On April 1, 1921, he was made bishop of Adana and on June 13, 1921, was created a cardinal by Pope Benedict XV.

Vatican Representative. According to the Catholic directory, Ratti's position previous to the death of Pope Benedict was representative of the vatican in Poland, residing in Warsaw.

Cardinal Ratti by his election today becomes the 261st pope since the time of St. Peter. As Pope Pius XI he is expected to continue the policy of reconciliation with the Italian government, for he was a member of the Gasparri party which stood for a rapprochement between the Quirinal and the vatican.

Cardinal Ratti is in his 65th year. Although he is an Italian, he is better known in Poland.

When the scrutiny of the ballots within the secret conclave in the sistine chapel this morning showed that the necessary majority of two-thirds had been received by Cardinal Ratti, the secretary of the conclave, the masters of ceremony and the sacristan of the vatican were admitted to the chapel.

Cardinals Pay Homage. The secretary of the conclave and the priests then proceeded with the robing of the newly elected pope. One of the three white robes which had been prepared for the ceremony was put upon Ratti and the secretary of the conclave knelt and handed to him the white cap which designates him as supreme pontiff.

The first homage was paid to the new pope by the cardinals in order. Cardinal Gasparri, who as cardinal camerlengo, had retained temporary papal authority was then required to approach the throne and give to Pope Pius XI the ring of St. Peter which will later be turned over to the prefect of ceremonies to have Ratti's name inscribed upon it.

The cardinals then returned to their cells to await the formal announcement to the public of the election.

Following this announcement there was further ceremony to be gone through in the sistine chapel and later, according to custom, in one of the chapels of St. Peter's.

Appears Before Throne. The newly elected pope appeared upon the vatican balcony and bestowed his benediction upon the troops and the immense throng which had crowded forward. The soldiers presented arms as his holiness appeared and the crowd fell to its knees, many being overcome with emotion.

The coronation of Pope Pius XI will constitute the last and most magnificent ceremony of all those attending the death of the supreme pontiff and the election of his successor.

The exact date for the coronation, as well as the place where it will be held, will be designated by Pope Pius himself.

The newly-elected pope broke the precedent which has been established since the time of Pius IX by appearing on the balcony and bestowing the blessings upon the throng beneath. It had been customary for the pope to bestow this first public blessing from a balcony inside St. Peter's.

Ratti achieved considerable fame in Italy and Switzerland as an Alpinist and compiled an extensive library on mountaineering.

Arbuckle's Third Trial In Death Case Is Set for March 13

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6.—March 13 today was named as the date when Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle must go to trial for a third time for alleged responsibility for the death of Virginia Rappe.

Attorney Gavin McNab, Charles Brennan and Milton Cohen appeared with Arbuckle in court.

Reports circulated that Alice Blake and Zey Pyron, the two show girls who played the roles of star witnesses against Arbuckle, had disappeared, proved unfounded when Miss Blake appeared at the district attorneys office while Arbuckle's case was being heard in court.

The district attorney said Miss Pyron also was in San Francisco.

LOSES RACE TO HELP IN NAMING POPE

Cardinal O'Connell For Second Time Reaches Rome Too Late To Assist In Election.

ROME, Feb. 6.—Cardinal O'Connell arrived at Rome this afternoon, too late to take part in the election of Cardinal Ratti to the papacy. Pope Pius XI received the American cardinal and bestowed his blessing.

Over seven years ago when the Sacred college elected Pope Benedict XV, Cardinal O'Connell arrived at Naples on the very morning Benedict was finally chosen and was on his way to Rome when his car broke down and tolling bells informed him that he was just too late.

This morning Cardinal O'Connell arrived at Naples and was on his way by special train to the capital when the election of Cardinal Ratti was announced.

BERLIN WITHOUT WATER, LIGHT IN STRIKE

(United Press Leased Wire)
BERLIN, Feb. 6.—Berlin felt the full force of the general strike which grew from the nation-wide railroad strike today. The capital's water supply and lighting system was completely disrupted and every ounce of water that could be found was utilized for drinking purposes.

The general strike which may include motor bus and subway employees today has spread from Berlin to Mecklenburg and parts of Baden. In all parts of the country the general rail strike becomes more paralyzing in its effectiveness. A few airplane lines are running.

The German cabinet and the coalition parties discussed the situation by candle light last night. Afterwards an official communication was issued stating that the government's attitude had not changed and that it was unyielding. The communication promised that an emergency corps would today start up the city's water and electricity systems.

Mexican Envoy Loses Place as War Is Feared

NOGALES, Sonora, Mex., Feb. 6.—Official advices from Mexico City today confirmed earlier reports, carried exclusively by the United Press, that the Mexican minister plenipotentiary to Guatemala had been withdrawn because of the trouble between the two republics along the Suchiate river, international boundary.

"General Luis Coballero, minister plenipotentiary to Guatemala, from Mexico, has been recalled, leaving the legation in charge of a secretary only," the official statement said.

Applause greeted Balfour, Hughes and other delegates as they arrived. Hughes, after being greeted with a flood of applause, called the session to order.

"I am happy to announce," he said "that the treaty between China and Japan relating to Shantung was signed on Saturday."

The American delegation, headed by Secretary Hughes, is said to have stood over the victim, placing the muzzle of the gun at Sample's head and firing. Death was instantaneous.

"I only got what he deserved," Breedlove is said to have told arresting officers.

Jealousy over asserted attentions Samples is said to have been paying Mrs. Breedlove is given as the motive for the crime.

The Samples murder marks the third man slain here in as many days, with a fourth murder victim reported dying.

DELEGATES SIGN FIVE TREATIES

HARDING PRAISES WORK OF ENVOYS

Expects Work of Conferees to Make Possible Sessions In Future

By CARL D. GROAT
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
CONTINENTAL HALL, WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The Washington conference on armament limitation and Far Eastern questions having written on the records of time a remarkable list of achievements to preserve the peace of the world, passed into history today.

President Harding, who opened the conference twelve weeks ago today closed it by predicting the success achieved here, will make possible like conferences in the future.

Praises Conference He eloquently praised the conference as having "lighted the torches of understanding" which ought to glow and encircle the globe.

Harding's address followed the formal signing of five far-reaching treaties by the conference, including the naval limitation pact.

The treaties now go to the respective legislative bodies of the world for ratification.

A prayer by Rev. Dr. Abernathy, Harding's pastor, followed Harding's speech.

A rap of Secretary Hughes' gavel then brought the conference to an end.

In D. A. R. Hall In the stately D. A. R. hall, beneath the varicolored banners of nine nations represented here, occurred the ceremony which crowned three months of labor with more fruitful results toward peace than centuries of dreaming after such achievements.

It was a stirring scene. A distinguished company, headed by the president of the United States, saw the delegations file to a table in the center of the great hall, attach their signatures carefully and file back to their places around the great horseshoe table which had witnessed so much making of history the past twelve weeks.

President Harding, the ceremony done, addressed the gathering.

The work his invitation has set in motion was at an end.

And, his speech was a sort of Godspeed to the delegates, a sort of benediction on a noble work.

The treaty, signed by the nine powers were the Chinese customs document and the Chinese "policy" treaty giving China a new deal and a new place in the sun.

The treaties signed by the five powers, America, Britain, France, Italy and Japan, were the naval limitation, setting a curb on naval building by scrapping many crafts and placing a limit on future ship construction, and the joint poison gas and submarine limitation document.

The treaty signed by the four powers, America, Britain, France and Japan, was a supplement to the already signed four-power Pacific treaty defining clearly what Japan's insular possessions are.

PAULINE FREDERICK IS MARRIED HERE

SEATTLE DOCTOR BECOMES THIRD HUSBAND OF NOTED FILM ACTRESS

Pauline Frederick, former wife of Willard Mack, playwright, and said to receive the biggest salary of any woman on the silver sheet who works for a salary, was married in Santa Ana last Saturday night.

The groom was Dr. Charles Alton Rutherford, Seattle, a wealthy physician and surgeon, who is said to have been an old-time sweetheart of the famous star.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. F. T. Porter, pastor of the First Christian church, at his home here. The couple, who were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Collins and Mr. and Mrs. John Gardner, of Los Angeles, slipped into Santa Ana late in the evening.

The marriage license, issued by County Clerk J. M. Backs, was made out in the name of Beatrice Libbey, of Los Angeles. The bride gave her age as 37. The groom is 46.

The Rev. Mr. Porter, who married the couple between 10 and 11 p. m., said today that he was not aware at the time that the bride was the Robertson-Cole star.

She was beautifully gowned and wore a drooping ostrich plume which according to the minister, almost concealed her striking features.

According to those well acquainted with the couple, Dr. Rutherford has been an ardent admirer of the film beauty for many years. The couple returned to Los Angeles immediately after the ceremony.

OIL MAGNATE ON STAND IN TAX REFUND ROW

A. Otis Birch, head of the Birch Oil company, took the witness stand today in Superior Judge R. Y. Wilkins' court to testify in behalf of his company's suit to recover $17,000 in taxes paid to Orange county under protest during the year 1916-7.

Birch's testimony dealt with the valuations of oil property in the Brea field, where his company's holdings are situated. It was designed as a link in the chain of evidence which the oil company hopes will convince the court that the Birch property was excessively assessed and taxed.

B. F. Conway, owner of one-fifth of the Birch stock, preceded Birch on the stand and gave his estimate of what the Birch holdings were worth during 1916. He placed the valuation at $500,000 but appeared unable to give his reasons for naming that figure.

Assessment Slashed

That year the property was assessed at $640,000, that figure later being reduced to $600,000 by the supervisors, sitting as a board of equalization.

Birch's taxes that year amounted to $19,500. He seeks a reduction of this sum to $2,500.

Figures presented at the trial show that the famous Birch well No. 5, claimed to have been ruined by a well drilled on the Columbia lease, adjoining the Birch properties, produced a total of 1,623,600 barrels of oil from 1911 to 1916. Its peak year was 1912, when it produced 363,525 barrels, the total gradually diminishing from then to 1916 when the production was 152,076 barrels.

Other Production Figures

The other eight wells of the Birch company produced 898,711 barrels in the same period.

From 1911 to 1916 the Birch company secured as high as 276,092 gallons of gasoline in one year, representing 40 per cent of what was extracted from its gas production, loaned to the Pacific Gasoline company for extraction purposes. The revenue from this source ranged as high as $36,511.12 for a year.

Up to 1916, the average receipts on the sale of gas, from which gasoline was thus extracted, amounted to $1,000 a month.

Trial of the Birch suit, which was started last week, was resumed today after a recess Friday.

GEORGE CLAUSEN DIES SUDDENLY AT HOME HERE

"I am going to meet Alice."

With these words on his lips, George Clausen, for the past fifteen years a furniture dealer here, yesterday morning at 2 o'clock at his residence, 1509 North Main street, succumbed to a sudden and unexpected stroke of paralysis and followed to the Great Beyond his daughter, Miss Alice Clausen, who met with a tragic death here less than two months ago.

Grief over the passing of his daughter is believed to have been partly responsible for the stroke.

Mr. Clausen was stricken shortly after retiring at midnight Saturday. Only his left side was affected at first and he was able to go to the bedroom of his daughter, Miss Rosa, and arouse her. With the assistance of Russell Peterson, a nephew of Mr. Clausen, who lives at the home, the daughter was able to get her father back to his bed. Physician and nurse were summoned at once.

Last summer Mr. Clausen suffered for a time from high blood pressure and pains in his head, but apparently had fully recovered.

Miss Alice Clausen died December 15, following severe burns received when her robe caught fire as she passed an open gas heater in the bathroom.

Miss Rosa Clausen, instructor in domestic science at the high school, is the only remaining member of the immediate family. Mrs. Clausen having died here a few years ago.

Mr. Clausen is survived by a brother and three sisters. The brother, Prof. C. Clausen, and a sister, Mrs. O. C. Anderson, reside at Albert Lee, Minn. The other sisters are Mrs. O. R. Thompson, Waukegan, Ill., and Mrs. J. P. Johnson, Minneapolis, Minn.

Leonard Peterson, a brother of Mrs. Clausen, arrived today from Fresno.

Mr. Clausen recently erected a two-story brick building at 410 West Fourth street as a permanent location for his furniture business. He was a native of Denmark, and was 60 years old.

Funeral services will be held next Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Mission Funeral home of Mills and Winbigler, with the Rev. John Oliver, pastor of the First Methodist church, officiating.

WRIGLEY'S PLAN FOR REGATTA GRAB BARED

That William Wrigley, owner of Catalina island, is 'ying plans for a determined fight to deprive Orange county of one of the most valuable advertising assets to which it has fallen heir in many years, was the statement made last Saturday night by Commodore Frank Smith and former-Commodore Claude Putnam at an adjourned meeting of the members of the Newport Harbor Yacht club.

Wrigley, with his millions of wealth, is trying, it was asserted, to take the 1922 regatta of the Southern California Yachting association away from Orange county's harbor. The regatta was awarded to the Newport Harbor Yacht club at last year's annual meeting of the association. It developed last week at a meeting of the association that Wrigley desires to stage the next regatta at Avalon and is prepared to spend a large sum of money to accomplish his end.

Charges that the entrance to Newport harbor was not deep enough to admit the large boats that will enter the regatta were made at the association meeting by men said to be representing Wrigley. It was also declared that Newport and Balboa do not have the accommodations properly to handle the crowd that will attend and take part in the regatta.

Plan Suitable Facilities

Lew Wallace, secretary of the Orange county harbor commission, declared last Saturday night when these charges were revealed, that the harbor entrance and channels will take care of any boat entering the regatta and that the city plans many improvements to be completed before next August, the month in which the regatta is to be held. Notable among these are the sewer system, paving of many streets and the dredging of a turning basin near the yacht club at a cost of $30,000.

Commodore Smith and Putnam will represent the Orange county club at a meeting of the association to be held next Friday night in Los Angeles and will make a determined fight against Wrigley's asserted plan to take the regatta away from Orange county. Efforts also are to be made to have the board of supervisors, harbor commission, representatives of the Balboa and Newport Chambers of Commerce and other Orange county organizations present.

Valuable Advertising

Members of the yacht club maintain that the free advertising Orange county will receive as a result of the regatta being held in the county's harbor is worth a determined fight. Representatives of all boating and yachting magazines will attend the regatta. Many of the big Eastern newspapers will also send reporters to the event and thus all yachting and boating enthusiasts will be made acquainted with Orange county's harbor.

At the first annual regatta of the association, held last year at Santa Barbara, every yacht club of the coast was represented. Boats from as far south as San Diego and as far north as Seattle and Portland took part in the regatta. Hundreds of Eastern boatmen also attend the event.

PLAN EXPANSION OF BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

With the fund drive over and the quota of $12,500 virtually assured, Roland Dye, scout executive of the Orange County Boy Scouts, today stated that the next step in development of the enlarged program for Boy Scout work in the county would be the organization of a class for the training of adult leaders for troops.

He expects to have two classes organized and going within the next three weeks. Members must be 21 years of age. An assistant scout executive will also be provided to assist in the work in the county. The assistant will be the point of contact between the troops and the county council, and will initiate and supervise activities of all the troops. There are now twenty-two troops in the county and it is the expectation of Dye to increase this to at least forty.

There are now twenty-two troops in the county and it is the expectation of Dye to increase this to at least forty.

As tentatively outlined the goal for the Santa Ana district will be 500 Boy Scouts, Orange 150, Fullerton 250 and Anaheim 300.

The first session of the court of honor, which is being developed, will be held February 16, as tentatively arranged at this time. Chairmen for the court of honor have been appointed as follows: R. R. Miller, Santa Ana; Leon Whitsett, Orange; and the Rev. E. J. Stetson, Fullerton. A chairman for the Anaheim district has not been appointed as yet.

Dye was at Anaheim today and attended the Rotary club meeting when the canvass in Anaheim was discussed and plans were made for cleaning up the drive in that district. No additional team reports were received today from any section of the county and the status of the fund remained as it was Saturday, cash had pledges totalling $11,071.

URGE COUNTY BOARD TO EXTEND HIGHWAY

That the county of Orange take action to improve that unpaved portion of Central avenue, extending west from La Habra to the county line, was urged today on the board of supervisors in a communication from the Auto Club of Southern California.

The club pointed out that Los Angeles county has set aside the sum of $30,000 to improve that part of the thoroughfare in Los Angeles county, extending from the Orange county line to connect with Telegraph road, thus forming a direct traffic route between Los Angeles and Orange county points.

The communication, filed today with County Clerk J. M. Backs, will be laid before the board of supervisors at their meeting tomorrow.

Plan Proves Failure

Mrs. Douglas MacLean, after watching Milo's pantomime, informed deputy sheriffs that she could not positively identify the suspect as the man she saw walk away from Taylor's home on the night of the tragedy.

Milo and Reineque were both driven home shortly after midnight, and released upon warning not to attempt to leave the city.

They were officially informed that they were under surveillance. The sheriff's office announced that it had not abandoned the theory, to which color was given by the mysterious telephone call, that Milo may have been a disgruntled suitor of Miss Normand who killed the prominent picture director from jealousy.

Milo, interviewed today by the United Press, was still somewhat staggered by his experience of last night.

His screen history in Los Angeles connects him with several prominent women stars, with whom he has worked in various pictures. These include Pauline Frederick, Thea Bara, Clara Kimball Young and Ruth Roland.

The signing by America, representatives of Belgium, affixed their signatures to the two nine-power treaties affecting China.

The audience broke into loud applause when Great Britain's delegation, headed by Balfour, and including Lord Lee of the British admiralty, Ambassador Geddes and the representatives of the British dominions, stepped to the signing table.

Blinding arc lights were flashed on each delegation while the movie cameras reported for all time the historic scene.

The Chinese delegation then signed the nine-power treaties.

Sarrault and Jusserand then signed all the treaties for France.

The Italian delegation, headed by Schanzer, then signed, and was followed by Japan's delegation, headed by Kato. With Kato were Baron Shidehara and Vice Foreign Minister Hanihara. The Dutch and Portuguese delegations were the last to sign.

Mr. Hasbrouck was 79 years old and was formerly a resident of Santa Ana. He was a brother-in-law of Mrs. A. Gustlin, this city, and an uncle of Clarence A. Gustlin.

COLLEGE GRID STAR BARRED FROM GAME

LINCOLN, Neb., Feb. 6.—John Pucelik, giant university of Nebraska guard, and all-American grid star, was today officially notified by university authorities that he could no longer participate in intercollegiate athletics, following his admission that he had played with the Sioux City all stars, December 4. Pucelik denied that he was paid for his services. The game took place two weeks after the football season closed.

DOUBLE ATTEMPT TO TAKE LIFE SUCESS

GREELEY, Colo., Feb. 6.—William Justice, 57, made certain his suicide here today. His body was found in his home by his daughter-in-law. Justice had placed a noose around his neck, stood on a box and fired a bullet into his head from a rifle.

The shock of the bullet caused him to fall from the box and added strangulation to the bullet's effect. Death was instantaneous.

WEALTHY BELLE IN COURT FOR ANNULMENT

What wealthy Los Angeles society girl is masked behind the name of Josephine Burtis, now seeking to annul her marriage to Paul E. Jones, through the superior court here?

That she is an heiress; also wealthy in her own right; and that she is a Los Angeles social favorite, is admitted. Josephine Burtis is moreover, her true name, but it is not the name by which she is known in social circles of the metropolis.

The real Josephine Burtis is being carefully concealed behind the name she uses, that no ghost of the girlhood adventure, now buried in the dead past, may arise to embarrass the young heiress before her friends, to whom the adventure has never been known. Her folly must never reach their ears.

The marriage, which took place in Seal Beach March 19, 1921, when the girl was 17 years old, was but a girlish fancy, regretted as soon as done. The couple parted the day they wed. A sensation in high Los Angeles society was thus averted and must still be prevented by the avoidance of publicity, it has been decreed.

The girl became 18 years old January 27, 1922.

Under the law, because she never lived with the man she married, as his wife, she may now bring suit for annulment under her own name. Because she has taken the latter course, she succeeds in further cloaking her identity.

Name Kept Secret.

"I am not at liberty to state who my client is, other than that her true name is Josephine Burtis, as given in this suit," was the reply today of Roland Thompson, attorney for the plaintiff, when asked concerning her identity.

"She is not now known by that name, since she has grown up under the name of her mother, acquired by a second marriage."

According to those familiar with the facts, the girl's mother is now the wife of John C. Knorrp. The Knorrps, it was said, were living at Long Beach at the time of the girl's marriage to Jones at Seal Beach. The mother's maiden name was Margaret E. Beckwith, and the application for annulment shows that the young woman's father's name was Robert Burtis. His address was not given.

Paul E. Jones, the man in the case, is also a person of more than one name. His true name, it is stated, is Homer Jones. He was a resident of San Pedro at the time of the marriage, but is now in Vanoss, Oklahoma.

Eighteen Last Month

When Josephine reached her 18th birthday, January 27 of this year, she wasted but little time taking advantage of the legal recourse open to her. This conveniently permitted her to conceal the present name of her mother, who, otherwise, would have been forced to sue for annulment in her behalf.

VICTIM OF APHASIA DOES NOT KNOW WIFE

Although the condition of Joseph Day, aphasia victim, was somewhat improved today, he was still unable to recognize his wife, who arrived here yesterday in response to a telegram sent her by her brother, J. A. Hatch of this city.

"When my sister arrived, Day seemed to feel that he knew her," said Hatch, "but he was not absolutely sure about it. He is greatly improved, however, and we are confident he will pull through in good condition. His mind is clearing and his physical condition is first class."

Day, who was formerly a high school teacher in Woods Cross, Utah, left his home several weeks ago without advising his wife of his intentions.

He was later a patient in a Los Angeles hospital, unable to remember his name or any of the details of his long journey. He was brought to Santa Ana by Hatch, his brother-in-law, and is receiving chiropractic treatment at the Hatch home.

"30" BULLETINS

W. O. Hart, of Orange, today received his commission as postmaster at that city. He stated he would take charge within a day or two, or as soon as a postal inspector arrived from Los Angeles to check up at the office.

The Santa Ana police department was asked today to keep watch for Miss Rhoda N. Dearman, 13-year-old Fullerton high school student, who was reported missing from her home in that city. Miss Dearman was reported as last seen this morning on her way to school.

The heirs are Louis C. McKee and Adolf Campbell, sons of the deceased, and Mollie Holzknecht, her sister, all residents of Santa Ana.

TRANSFER HOLDINGS FOR STOCK IN HOTEL

Approximately a dozen holders of units in the St. Ann's Inn property had called at one of the banks today and signed the papers indicating their willingness to convert their holdings into stock of a $250,000 corporation to be organized to take over the property.

The papers are at the various banks of the city and lists of the names of owners of units were being prepared today to be left at the banks so that the attention of unit holders may be called to them.

NEW SEWER SYSTEM WILL BE SUBMITTED

Immediate organization of a sewer district for the installation of a sewer system in the western part of the city will be urged on the city trustees tonight by Walter Wray, sewer superintendent. The district will embrace that territory between Fifth street on the south, and Hickey street on the north, with the east and west boundaries being Bristol and Artesia streets.

Installation of the system is necessary before West Fifth street is paved, in the opinion of Wray. There are about fifty acres in the proposed district.

SONOMA COUNTY PLANS CHARTER GOVERNMENT

SANTA ANA, Feb. 6.—Forty representative citizens from all parts of Sonoma county met here today and adopted a resolution for the organization of a county charter league looking toward a charter form of government.

At a meeting to be held in Healdsburg, February 15, the league will be organized and freeholders chosen to frame a proposed charter.

The form favored is a board of directors with a county manager. It is believed that the county will be able to reduce expenses and promote efficiency in this manner.

SPUR OPPONENT WILL CONTINUE VIGILANCE

Although it believes it to be unlikely that the Union Pacific will proceed further with its Olive-Tustin project, the growers' committee, consisting of W. N. Cummings, D. C. Drake and I. L. Collins, today issued a statement in which it set forth the opinion, in which its attorney, Judge Frank S. Brittain, of San Francisco, concurs, that, pending definite developments, the growers' organization should be kept intact, and that its funds should be conserved.

In support of its view that the railroad will probably hold its plans in abeyance, the committee points out that "modern railroad managements are really solicitous of the good will of the public," and cites this to be "good morals as well as good business."

The committee further cites the overwhelming opposition that developed against the Olive-Tustin project.

"The directorates of every association packing house from Olive to Tustin formally passed resolutions condemning the project, as did the Orange county board of supervisors, the Santa Ana Valley Irrigation company, the Orange Community Chamber of Commerce, and other organizations," the committee set forth.

The statement gives the view, in addition, that "the Union Pacific has obtained its object, that of originating freight, to the better advantage of all concerned, by not building the Olive-Tustin line."

In this connection the committee states that the attention of President C. R. Gray of the Union Pacific has been called to the advantages of packing houses situated in the club by Allen C. Stelle, of the Title Insurance and Trust company, Los Angeles. Stelle was a speaker at the national convention of title men in the East recently. Harvey A. Gardner is chairman of the committee in charge of the program for tomorrow. Other committee members are Dr. J. I. Clark, W. L. Deimling and Fred Parsons.

Members of Santa Ana Lodge No. 794, B. P. O. E., are looking forward to next Tuesday evening, when Past Exalted Rulers and Old Timers' night will be held. The past exalted rulers will take full charge of the entire meeting. They are R. C. Peterson, W. F. Diers, W. C. Jerome, H. A. Gardner, M. A. Patton, H. J. Lowe, J. C. Burke, W. F. Menton, M. L. Keeler, J. H. Turner, G. H. Dolson, Fred A. Ross, P. S. Roper, A. J. Klunk and H. C. Head.

At a meeting of Santa Ana Lodge No. 794, B. P. O. E., to be held February 14, nominations will be received for officers for 1922-23, the nomination period to close the second Tuesday in March at which time election will be held. Installation will take place the first meeting night in April.

Guy J. Gilbert will be in Los Angeles tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday, attending a district agency meeting of the Lincoln National Life Insurance company. The Lincoln Life holds these district meetings throughout the United States, assembling their 2,000 agents at various times and at various places. The meeting in Los Angeles will be made up of the California agents, comprising about seventy-five men.

Annual meeting of the Fairview Farms Water company of Costa Mesa is to be held at the church tomorrow at 1 o'clock. A noon dinner is to be served by the Ladies' Aid, the proceeds to be applied to their treasury fund. The Rev. D. H. Reid, pastor of the Costa Mesa church, is reported to be seriously ill with pneumonia. Reports from Costa Mesa state that while he had rallied somewhat today, his life was despaired of yesterday.

Prize cups to be awarded to Orange county dairymen at the big convention in Garden Grove next Wednesday were today on display in the window of Padgham's jewelry store on Fourth street. An architect to draw the plans for the new elementary school will probably be chosen at a meeting of the board of education to be held in the Spurgeon building next Wednesday at 1 p. m. It is not expected that action will be taken then regarding a site for the proposed structure.

An overheated fireplace was given as the cause of a $350 blaze at the home of G. R. Blauer, 1080 West Seventeenth street, at 1:20 p. m. yesterday. With some difficulty the flames were extinguished by means of chemical tanks in the hands of the fire department members.

$5,000 IS NEEDED TO COMPLETE FLOOD FUND

(Special to The Register)
ANAHEIM, Feb. 6.—Thirty-five thousand dollars of the fund of $40,000 being raised for permanent flood protection along the Santa Ana river south of the Olive bridge has been pledged, according to a statement by Charles Eysabroad, chairman, here today.

Eysabroad said that the canvassing of the district outside of the city would be completed tonight. When the full amount is pledged, a meeting will be called at which the subscribers will be given an opportunity to pass upon the plans and outline the manner in which the $40,000 shall be expended.

VOLUNTEERS FOR ELECTION DUTY ARE SOUGHT

That school laws have placed Santa Ana in the position of owing a cart without a horse in the matter of holding the election to create the proposed junior college district, was disclosed today when Mrs. Terry E. Stephenson made an appeal for volunteers to act on the election boards here when the election is held March 31.

The election has been called by R. P. Mitchell, superintendent of county schools, who is without authority to pay members of boards. The Santa Ana board of education is without authority to draw warrants on its treasury to pay election board members for work that is authorized by the county.

Appointment of men or women to serve is made by Mitchell. The situation was pointed out by J. A. Cranston, superintendent of the city schools, who passed it on to Mrs. Stephenson, as president of the City Parent-Teacher federation, for solution, with the suggestion that members of the various P. T. A. bodies be requested to serve without pay.

Conflicting Date
This has brought further complication so far as the P. T. A. is concerned, for on the date of the election the national president of the P. T. A. is scheduled to be in Santa Ana for a meeting and luncheon at St. Ann's Inn. Members of these organizations desire to meet the national executive and it is believed it will be impossible to secure volunteers from the associations to serve on election boards.

The places the matter squarely up to the general public and men and women who are interested in the creation of the district and are willing to donate their services are invited to advise Mrs. Stephenson accordingly.

Santa Ana will be divided into five voting precincts and three members for each board will have to be provided, which means that fifteen men and women will be asked to give up the full day March 31 to a public service and without charge. Polls in Santa Ana will be open from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Grammar Election Simple
The situation in the grammar school districts which are to be included in the junior college district is without complexities, for the districts will have to hold elections for school trustees on the date. The same boards will officiate for the registering of votes on the creation of the junior college district.

In the outside districts the polls will have to be open for only four hours, and it is possible that the hours in each district will be different, for their establishment is left to choice of the individual school boards. The law designates that the grammar school district elections for trustees must be held for a period of four hours any time after 9 a. m.

SAYS GAS EQUAL TO DEMANDS OF COLD SPELL

"Orange county received 100 per cent gas service during the recent record-breaking cold period," declared J. C. Hayden, district superintendent of the Southern Counties Gas company, today in discussing the recent increase in gas consumption in Orange county.

"The Southern Counties Gas company weathered one of the coldest periods experienced in Southern California by serving a steady, even supply of gas," continued Hayden. "While thousands of other Southern California gas consumers were unable to cook breakfast or warm their homes during the recent cold snap, our consumers enjoyed good gas service."

Hayden also quoted some interesting figures to show exactly what amounts of gas were consumed here during the recent cold period. He stated that the average daily gas consumption during the month of December, 1921, was approximately 5,500,000 cubic feet. The average daily consumption in December 1921 had jumped to 6,700,000.

Peak on January 19
According to Hayden the peak day of the present season to date as far as gas consumption was concerned was January 19. On this date the gas company pumped through its local transmission and distribution system 9,738,000 cubic feet of gas, or 78 per cent more gas than was consumed in Orange county on the average day of December last year.

On January 20, the consumption in Orange county was very heavy, said Hayden, 8,057,000 cubic feet of gas being consumed. January 21 was also a cold day, 7,997,000 cubic feet being the consumption for that date.

"We put more gas through our Orange county transmission and distribution system on January 19 than on any previous day in our history," said Hayden. "To meet this enormous demand for gas consumption we taxed our compression and transmission system to a great degree. Few consumers who arise on a peak day, turn on the gas and enjoy the same service as on any other day, appreciate just what it means to the gas company to meet one of these tremendous peak days. It means that we must take advantage of every part of our great transmission, distribution and compression system in Orange county. It means that the gas man

A break in a gas line, compression trouble or some unforeseen accident may cut off the gas supply of a city and to be ready for such emergencies the gas company keeps its men on the job night and day.

Anticipate Demands
"I consider it a wonderful thing to be able to keep abreast of the rapidly growing districts of this county which in other parts of Southern California some of the public utilities have been unable to do. We constantly plan and install betterments and improvements to our system, knowing that the following year's peak load is to be greater than the last."

The Southern Counties Gas company besides serving gas in Orange county, delivers gas to 43 other cities of Southern California including such cities as Long Beach, Santa Monica, Venice, Pomona, Monrovia, Santa Barbara, Ventura and Oxnard.

BROTHER OF KAHN IN FEDERAL BERTH

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—California senators have agreed on some additional patronage matters in the North. Congressman Kahn, whose district is in the north, is only second to that of Uncle Joe Cannon in length of service and importance, has been rewarded by the appointment of his brother, Bert Kahn, as appraiser of merchandise at the port of San Francisco. This is one of the most important federal appointments in the North and is for a term of four years.

Jacob Schene has been named first assistant appraiser, and while not entirely settled, it is believed the D. E. O'Keefe will be the choice of the senators for the second assistant appraiser of the port.

POLICE FOLLOW TRAIL TO OFFICE OF CUPID

The disappearance of Vida Quintana, 17, and Silverio Magano, from Santa Ana several days ago was explained when relatives of the girl, inquiring today at the office of County Clerk J. M. Backs, learned that the couple had secured a marriage license there Saturday.

In securing the license, the girl's age had been given as 18. Her relatives declare that she is only 17. What action would be taken in the case was not indicated. The man and girl disappeared on the same day last week and the police were asked to search for them, an elopement having been suspected, as the parents of the girl had not consented to her marriage.

DISMISS CHARGE OF RESISTING OFFICER

A charge of resisting an officer was dismissed today by Justice J. B. Cox in the case of W. E. Fulton, arrested at San Juan Capistrano, after an altercation with Constable John Clark, who arrested him on a charge of disturbing the peace.

Fulton had served 31 days on the latter charge, which constitutes a misdemeanor. Deputy District Attorney D. G. Wetlin moved dismissal of the charge "in the furtherance of justice." The authorities felt that Fulton had been sufficiently punished.

CHORAL UNION CAST TO REHEARSE OPERA

Beginning with tonight's rehearsal of "The Pirates of Penzance," the comic opera to be presented soon by the Orange County Choral Union, the members of the cast will hold all rehearsals at the high school auditorium, Robert Brown, one of the members stated today.

Rehearsals will begin at 7:45 and the stage work and all business will be introduced and rehearsed under the direction of Ellis Rhodes. That interest is effectually aroused in the presentation of the musical comedy, is evidenced by the preliminary seat sale.

The company's premier presentation of "The Mikado" remains in the public mind, as an unexcelled example of what amateur talent can produce under a capable director, and anticipations for the second offering are correspondingly high.

TELLURIUM GASOLINE TO DOUBLE MILEAGE

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 6.—Discovery of a tellurium gasoline compound that he expects will result in doubling the mileage of motor fuel has just been made by Victor H. Lenher, professor of chemistry at the University of Wisconsin.

Use of the substance will require redesigning automobile engines, Professor Lenher said.

SEEK TO QUIET TITLE.

Suit to quiet title on four lots at Huntington Beach had been filed today in the superior court by their owners, W. R. Wharton, A. B. Royal, S. Jennie McDonald and Mr. and Mrs. S. T. MacLean. The defendants in the action were Sydney P. Osborne and the Paramount Oil company. Blodgett and Blodgett are attorneys for the plaintiffs.

HELD IN JAIL HERE ON CHECK COMPLAINT

J. H. Gray, alias T. H. Lehman, was held in the county jail here today under $1,000 bail, awaiting appearance before Justice Cox March 16 at 2 p. m. on a charge of writing a fictitious check.

The offense charged against Gray was said to have been committed June 14, 1921, when Gray was alleged to have passed a $10 check on George Demetriu, proprietor of the Palace restaurant, Santa Ana. The check was drawn on the First National Bank of El Centro.

The extended search for Gray proved successful when he was taken into custody at Riverside last week. He was brought to Santa Ana late Saturday by Deputy Sheriff Herman Zabel.

DROP DIVORCE ACTION

The divorce suit of Clara Surber against Fred J. Surber, brought some time ago in the superior court, was ordered dismissed today on motion of attorneys for Mrs. Surber, indicating that the difficulties of the couple had been satisfactorily adjusted.

WAITER JAILED

Thomas Hobart, 28, a waiter, of Los Angeles, was held in the county jail today, awaiting disposition by the police. He was said to have been under the influence of drugs when arrested by Officers Stewart and Elliott Saturday.

AMATEUR VAUDEVILLE PLANNED AS BENEFIT

That Santa Anans possess unusual talent along vaudeville lines, is expected to be proven at the home talent performance to be staged the night of February 13 at the Temple theater under the auspices of the Daughters of Veterans.

Mrs. Leona B. Talbot, department guide of the organization in the states of California and Nevada, stated today that an interesting program would be given. Proceeds from the entertainment will all be devoted to the building fund for the Daughters' memorial home to be erected on the organization's lots at Sawtelle.

The object in establishing and maintaining these homes is to provide a place for the destitute and homeless among the widows of Civil War veterans, and in turn for the daughters and granddaughters in lineal descent, of these veterans.

JANUARY SHIPMENTS EXCEED 1921 PERIOD

(Special to The Register.) ANAHEIM, Feb. 6.—Anaheim district citrus shipments for January of this year exceeded by eighteen cars the shipments for January of last year, according to Southern Pacific officials here today. The increase was attributed to early picking.

TO TERMINATE INTEREST

Laura E. Sturgeon today filed a petition in the superior court, seeking termination of the life estate of J. H. Sturgeon, deceased, in Santa Ana city lots. Hearing on the petition has been set for Friday, February 17, in department one of the superior court. E. T. Langley is attorney for the petitioner.

Garden Grove

GARDEN GROVE, Feb. 6.—The H. B. Silkwood one-room house located in the southwest part of town was destroyed by fire Saturday afternoon, together with all the contents, including valuable papers, $50 in war saving stamps, and all of Silkwood's personal belongings.

After lighting his pipe, and tossing the match, which he believed extinguished, in one corner of the room, Mr. Silkwood went out to the barn and had hardly reached there when he noticed the house was a mass of flames.

Burning shingles from the building were carried by the high wind to the roof of the Nelson Cook garage, which also caught fire. Mr. and Mrs. Cook were away from home at the time but neighbors discovered the flames before they had made much headway.

The Patchwork Quilt HAVE YOU A PIECE TO PUT IN IT?

By ELEANOR ELLIOTT.
VINCENT EATS ALPHABET NOODLES.
I been sick; the doctor said To make my cheeks all rosy red, An' make my feet all full o' springs, I'd have to eat a lot o' things. But I don't want so very much O' bread an' milk an' eggs an' such; But I'll eat soup poured in my cup— An' hunt the letter noodles up! I find the A an' then the B An' clear up to the F an' G; But that one after G is lost An' it's the one I want the most. I eat my soup an' noodles up Clear to the bottom of the cup— Where can that letter noodle be— The one that comes right after G? I'll eat an' eat an' eat—you bet I'll find that old Whiz noodle yet!

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS.
"Look well to the weights of thy husband, my daughter. If he waxes fat and is content to stay home nights with slippers feet outstretched to the blaze on thy hearthstone, keep thou to the path which thy feet have chosen, verily that narrow path running from the closet which housest thy stores, to the blaze whereby they are roasted. For verily, thou art a good cook and a wise woman, my daughter, and thrice blessed shalt thou be in thy husband's appreciation thereof. But watch carefully thy step, my daughter, and sobeit he is anguished for strange foods which thou hast not on thy bill-of-fare, and thou seest he is not content, and groweth thinner day by day, hasten thou to the wife of thy husband's fattest friend, consider her recipes and be wise."

Yea, verily, if the husband of thy bosom asserteth in the market-place that he was at lodge the night before, I say unto thee, believe him. It will add not one jot nor tittle to thy peace of mind to do otherwise. For oh, my daughter, I say unto you, if half of what he saith unto thee is true, believe thou it—and let the other half slide.

Off have I heard it said that a man, even though he be old and feeble with years, still retaineth the heart and mind of a boy. Therefore I say unto thee, treat him as a boy, and as a loving child, he will snuggle against thee and beg for more.

On six days of the week thou shalt rise up and call him wonderful. Yea verily on the seventh day thou shalt rest not from thy assertions, and it be not so, there awaiteth around the corner, a flapper with cheeks of carmine who will speak the words thou heldest back in thy throat.

For I will sing it with the songs of the nation, yea verily unto the winds I will make my song. Thou hast him, look thou to the ways of thy household that thy mayest keep him, and whatever the song thy heart hath to sing to him, say it with kind words—flowers wilt.

DEAR CUSTODIANESS OF THE PATCHES:—

May I ask that you peruse this: "PRESNO, Feb. 1.—Holding tightly to the tail of a dog that was accompanying them, Fred Johnston and Alton Self, each aged 16, of Fresno, were led to safety through a blinding snowstorm on Monday in the mountains about thirty miles east of Fresno after they had become lost about two miles from their camp."

And now that you have duly perused, may I ask why it is that there still exist persons who do not hesitate to kick a dog? —Falstaff.

SAUCY ANNE SAYS:
"Somethin's at our house all bran new. Wisht you could have one like it too! It's goin to be mine till I'm growed clear up— It's a cute little cunnin' baby pup!"

PERSONALS

Mrs. Lucille Evans, a well known verse writer of Los Angeles, has been the pleasant houseguest of Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Smith. Mrs. Alice Hutchinson, of Minneapolis, Minn., arrived in this city Saturday for a month's visit with her daughter, Mrs. J. C. Schmidt, 2055 North Main street. Mrs. Schmidt's father was the late Rev. J. N. Hutchinson, well known divine of the Presbyterian church, former pastor at Marengo, Ill., and Sioux Falls, S. Dak. Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Wardlow have returned to their Corona home after a few days spent here with the families of R. B. Wardlow, 942 Bishop street and William M. Huff, East Sixth street. Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Lynn of Indianapolis, Ind., were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Albright, 718 South Sycamore street. Mr. Lynn is connected with the Eli Lilly Drug company of his Indianapolis home, and has come to the coast on a business trip. Mrs. Albright and Mrs. Lynn were girlhood friends.

Reunion of Old Friends

The presence in California of E. E. Gray, prominent in business and financial circles in Grand Rapids, Minnesota, was the signal for a pleasant reunion of old friends when Mr. Gray spent the weekend in Santa Ana with Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Zerman, 505 South Sycamore street. Mr. Gray and Mrs. Zerman were childhood friends in Iowa, and had not met for nearly thirty years. Mr. Gray expressed himself very enthusiastically about California, declaring that it far exceeded other points where he has been accustomed to spend his winters, and stating that he hopes in the future to come to this land of sunshine instead of seeking other resorts.

St. Ann's Inn Offers Charming Background For Smart Affair

The quaint English atmosphere of St. Ann's Inn was never so striking as when, on Friday afternoon, it offered its old-world charm as a background for one of the smartest affairs of the social season given by Mrs. Palmer S. Reynolds and Mrs. George S. Smith.

Mrs. Reynolds and Mrs. Smith received their guests in the attractive parlors, and were assisted in their duties as hostesses, by Mrs. C. S. Crookshank, Mrs. E. G. Tuthill and Miss Lida Crookshank.

Card tables with attractive linen covers, were awaiting the guests in the dining-room of the Inn, which was converted into a bower of roses for the occasion.

The screen which offered privacy to the affair by closing off the western end of the dining-room, was banked with greenery against which masses of roses stood out in gay relief, all forming a charming background for the exquisitely gowned women who took their places at the card tables.

The decorative effect gained by the use of roses in two shades, faint pink and a deep rose tint, was repeated in every way possible, in the elaborate course supper served at 5 o'clock, even the candy baskets emphasizing the two-tone effect.

The bestowal of daintily wrapped and tied gifts to those who excelled in the game of the afternoon, gave Mrs. Lucy Evans a charming, imported candy jar, while Mrs. Hollis of Tustin received an equally attractive flower holder in quaintly designed pottery.

Mrs. Robert Simon, holding low score, was consoled with a box of stationery of softest gray, with a rosy lining which repeated the decorative effect of the rooms.

With a pleasing informality, the guests chatted in the parlors of the Inn, while fresh linen replaced the card table covers for the serving of the delectable refreshments which were awaiting them when they returned to the thirty-two tables necessary for the seating of those attending one of the most delightful affairs of a delightful social season.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnstone are uncle and aunt of Mr. Hinkley, and took this happy manner of welcoming a new niece and introducing her to their friends.

Music and dancing added to the enjoyment of the affair, while the many handsome wedding gifts, with silver predominating, won the interested attention of the assembled guests.

A refreshing menu of dainties served buffet style at a late hour in the evening was an added enjoyable feature.

Mr. Hinkley is employed by the Standard Oil company and is a well-known member of the younger set of this city, while his bride, as Miss Mary Viola Dunn, of Orange, was equally popular with a large circle of friends.

Their marriage took place Saturday, January 21, and was followed by a delightful honeymoon spent at Riverside. They are now domiciled at 211 East Tenth street, where they extend a warm welcome to their hosts of friends.

Pleasant Birthday Dinner Embodies Happy Surprise for Hosts and Guest

Many delightful features characterized the elaborate chicken dinner with which Mr. and Mrs. W. Frank Harris yesterday entertained their friends in their spacious North Main street home.

Chief among these features was the fact that the occasion was inspired by the birthday anniversary of Mrs. F. M. Tombaugh of Burlington, Iowa, a sister of the hostess, who with her daughter, Miss Helen Tombaugh, is wintering in this sunny, southern clime.

When the assembled guests were ushered into the diningroom for the enjoyment of the delicious dinner, a second delightful feature was apparent in the flowers with which the table was so attractively centered.

These were magnificent American Beauty roses, a birthday remembrance from Dr. Tombaugh who took the charming way of reminding his wife that even though he was absent, his thoughts were in California rather than in Iowa.

Other lovely flowers were the gift of Miss Alva Alvin, recently from Sweden, and a companion of Mrs. Tombaugh.

An added surprise came in the afternoon when Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Cuthshaw with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Shepherd, old friends whom the Harris and Tombaugh families had known and loved in Kankakee, Ill., many years ago, dropped in unexpectedly.

The presence of these old friends in this section, was a great and pleasant surprise, and the reunion was a most happy one.

At the delightful birthday dinner, places were indicated for fifteen including in addition to the host and hostess and the honoree, Mrs. Tombaugh and Miss Helen Tombaugh, Messrs. and Mesdames J. Wiley Harris, J. B. Hickey, Floyd E. Knight and Little Maxine and Master Billy Knight, Mrs. Mary Beard and Dr. John Knight.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Sorter had returned today to their East Sixth street home after spending the weekend in Pasadena with their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Wallis. They were accompanied home by their daughter, Miss Margaret Sorter who has been spending the past two weeks with her cousin, Miss Bae Parman.

During her absence, Miss Sorter has been a guest at many functions honoring Miss Parman who will become the bride of Guy Stineburger on Saturday, February 18, at an elaborate wedding in the Episcopal church of Sierra Madre. Miss Sorter will be one of the bridesmaids at the wedding, which will be one of the leading social events of the little mountain city.

Mountain Hikers Enjoy Winter Sports In Snow on Saddle Back

With the snow covered peaks of Saddle Back as their ultimate destination, a merry party of hikers starting from this city early yesterday morning, spent a happy day in the hills.

Leaving their machines parked in a canyon, the party hiked eight miles to the camping grounds at the base of the mountain, where a delightful picnic lunch was enjoyed.

Unable to reach the top on account of the depth of the snow, plans for the climb were abandoned in favor of the true winter sport of snowballing.

Members of the party were Misses Ora Carson of Tustin, Louise Parks, June Rose, Julia Linsenbard, of Santa Ana, and Messrs. Harry Matthews, Harold Carson, Frank Matthews, Lewis Ward and Vern Tatum of Tustin, and Frank Rose of Santa Ana.

Winter Residents To Open "The Penholder"

"The Penholder," that pleasant little cottage on the cliffs at Laguna, is undergoing extensive repairs and will be put into complete repair by its new owners, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Herrington and Mr. H. A. Pounder of Gallon, Ohio, who have been pleasant house-guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. K. Forgy, 204 South Sycamore street.

The Ohicans will remain in this section until April, before returning to their Buckeye home, and will be welcomed by the host of friends they have made on previous visits in this section.

Mr. Herrington is prominent in Erie railroad circles while Mr. Pounder is a prominent lumber dealer of Gallon.

Entertain Chicago Guests

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Breckenridge, 107 Cypress avenue, are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Lowenstein, of Chicago, who are spending their honeymoon in Southern California.

Mr. and Mrs. Lowenstein had planned a Florida honeymoon following their wedding, a recent social event of the Windy City, but were forced to change their plans on account of an automobile accident, in which Mr. Lowenstein's mother figured in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Lowenstein is a guest at the Ambassador, and is now recovering from the effects of her distressing experience.

BEST YEAR IN HISTORY SEEN FOR SOFT DRINKS

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 6.—Charles E. Hires company predicts the greatest year in the soft-drink business. Sales for January exceeded 1200 gross bottles of root-beer extract, says Charles E. Hires Jr., and no previous January in the history of the company has a record of more than 250 gross. Bottling operations in the 500 branches throughout the country are double last year's.

Sales for October, November and December of 1921 were 300 per cent greater than the three corresponding months of 1920, and 200 per cent greater than any previous quarter in the company's history. The eighteenth amendment has increased consumption of soft drinks and economic changes have brought about more brewing of all beverages at home, Hires says. In the fall of 1920 jobbers were slow to buy last summer's requirements. Many of them had large carryovers. An exceptionally warm summer depleted stocks. Bottling branches are operating more actively in the East than in other sections.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR BIRTHDAY ALL WEEK

Marking the beginning of "birthday week" of the Christian Endeavor society, Santa Ana and Orange county churches yesterday observed the first of a number of special events to be given this week in honor of the organization founded forty-one years ago by Dr. Francis E. Clark of Maine.

Pastors and Sunday school teachers stressed the fact that the work of the Endeavorers is one of the most important phases of church life.

The week's observance of the birthday of the Christian Endeavor will include four large social gatherings for the groups of the society in all parts of the county.

Tonight the Orange and El Modena Endeavorers will meet in the First Presbyterian church at Orange.

Tomorrow night, for the Santa Ana and Tustin Endeavorers, the Community house of the Christian church will be thrown open.

Thursday evening, Endeavorers of Huntington Beach, Westminster, and Alamitos will meet at the Huntington Beach Christian church.

Fullerton, Anaheim, Brea, Yorba Linda and Placentia Endeavorers will meet Friday night in the Presbyterian church in Placentia.

The week's celebration will close in Anaheim next Saturday night.

GREETERS CLUB NOW OWNS OWN CLUBHOUSE

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—The Greeters of New York is a club composed of hotel clerks and assistant managers, although no one has yet discovered the line of demarcation between a hotel clerk and an assistant manager. There are 400 active and 200 associate members who until now have had to forgo their in the rotundas of the hotels with the rest of the hotel staff.

Somebody said it would be a good idea to have a clubhouse. Thereupon the Greeters raised $35,000 with which they have bought a clubhouse at 68 West Sixty-eighth street.

As a matter of history a hotel clerkship, or an assistant manager's, is only a station on the route from bellboy to hotel proprietor. In New York there are about 125 representative hotels. Their clerks and assistant managers have long wanted a place to go when off duty to read and play billiards, where the cost is within an average purse, and also a place to entertain out-of-town hotel folk. That is why they have put their dues so low, $11.50 a year, $2.50 of which is sent to the national organization of Greeters.

"Our home will be ready within a fortnight, and we shall open the clubhouse with a bang-up housewarming," today said Frank A. Ready. "We paid $35,000 cash for the lot and building, which is a five-story converted residence, and it cost us between $5000 and $6000 to transform it to fit our needs. There is a $17,000 first mortgage on the place, held by the Home for the Aged and Infirm of Staten Island. For the present we shall eat out."

Do not leave any crumbs in the tablecloths or napkins when they are placed in the soiled clothes hamper, as mice may ruin them.

CATARRH WAS QUICKLY ENDED STATES ROLPH

Health Had Been Completely Undermined and He Was Losing Three or Four Days at a Time From Work.

Gets Up Feeling Like A Boy Every Morning Now.

"I have often seen the time during the past year when I would have given everything I possessed to sleep like I did last night, and eat the hearty breakfast I did this morning," said Robert J. Rolph, Daley City, Calif.

"During the past year I was almost all out of commission from catarrh of the nose and throat which undermined my health. I would get up in the morning so choked up I could hardly breathe and so nauseated I couldn't eat breakfast. I finally got to where I would have to lay off from work three or four days at a time and I began to fear I would have to quit work altogether."

"Tanlac did me a world of good. Almost from the first dose my strength and energy began to come back. I feel like a boy in the morning, eat a big breakfast and so to work feeling just fine."

Tanlac is sold in Santa Ana by The Rowley Drug Co.

CULT OF SILENCE RENT BY LEGAL ERUPTION

Some of the survivors of that unique religious colony founded at Placentia thirty years ago, members of which believed in having no speech with persons outside of their cult, may soon not be even speaking to each other, to judge from a contest that developed yesterday in the superior court, when opposition arose to the appointment of William Wiederhold sr., as executor of the will of W. L. Thales, late founder of the sect.

Opposition to Wiederhold, moreover, came from within his own family, his wife, Matilda Wiederhold, filing the objection. She asserts that he is incompetent and incapable of handling the affairs of the $19,606 estate left by the founder of the colony to his followers.

Her attorneys, Ames and McFadden, of Anaheim, at the same time filed a petition for the appointment of Public Administrator Charles D. Brown to the place sought by Wiederhold. The petition was also based on the grounds of incompetency.

William Wiederhold, named executor in the Thales will, is 76 years old. He is represented by Attorneys Allen

SOUTH AMERICA IN BIG ECONOMIC GAINS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Market improvement in economic conditions in South America is seen by Secretary Hoover. The Latin-American countries, Hoover said today, have had no deep-seated shocks to overcome in their post-war recovery. Reports indicate, he said, South American countries are gradually absorbing their surplus stocks of goods, and it would seem they were going to make their recovery faster than other nations.

and Lyon of Fullerton.

Few members of the cult remain. Those who do, however, hold to their former customs and hold their promises inviolate to intrusion from non-believers. The Wiederholds are among the remaining followers, it is understood, being devisees under the will.

Spiritualism and vegetarianism were among the practices followed by the cult, besides those of avoiding speech or handshakes with those outside the circle of belief.

Unusual as their creed may have seemed, they were known, withal, as splendid farmers and excellent citizens. Their crops bore a state wide reputation for quality.

The estate left by Thales consisted of Anaheim Union Water company notes, bonds and stock, together with cash. Hearing on the opposing petitions has been set for Friday, February 17 at 9:30 a. m. before Superior Judge Z. B. West.

AIR ARMY WILL GOVERN IRAK FOR BRITISH

LONDON, Feb. 6.—The possibility of effectively controlling a troublesome country by means of an "air army" is to be thoroughly tried out by the British in Mesopotamia, or Iraq, to give it its new official name. The originator of the scheme is Colonial Secretary Winston Churchill, who has undertaken many daring and ingenious experiments during his cabinet career.

When war secretary, Churchill had to face a considerable amount of criticism over the number of Anglo-Indian troops retained in Mesopotamia at the expense of the British taxpayers, and he promised to replace these troops immediately with "aeroplane patrols." On going to the colonial office, which is responsible for the supervision of Mesopotamia, he was able to perfect his plans and start an entirely new scheme.

A fleet of 150 troop-carrying aeroplanes is under construction, each capable of carrying ten soldiers fully equipped for fighting, and two machine guns with necessary ammunition. By this means a complete battalion of 1000 men can be transported hundreds of miles across the des-

GREECE PLANS CASINO ESTABLISHMENTS LIKE FAMOUS MONTE CARLO

ATHENS, Feb. 6.—A bill has just been drawn up by the ministry of finance of Greece to permit the establishment of casinos like that of Monte Carlo at some of the famous resorts.

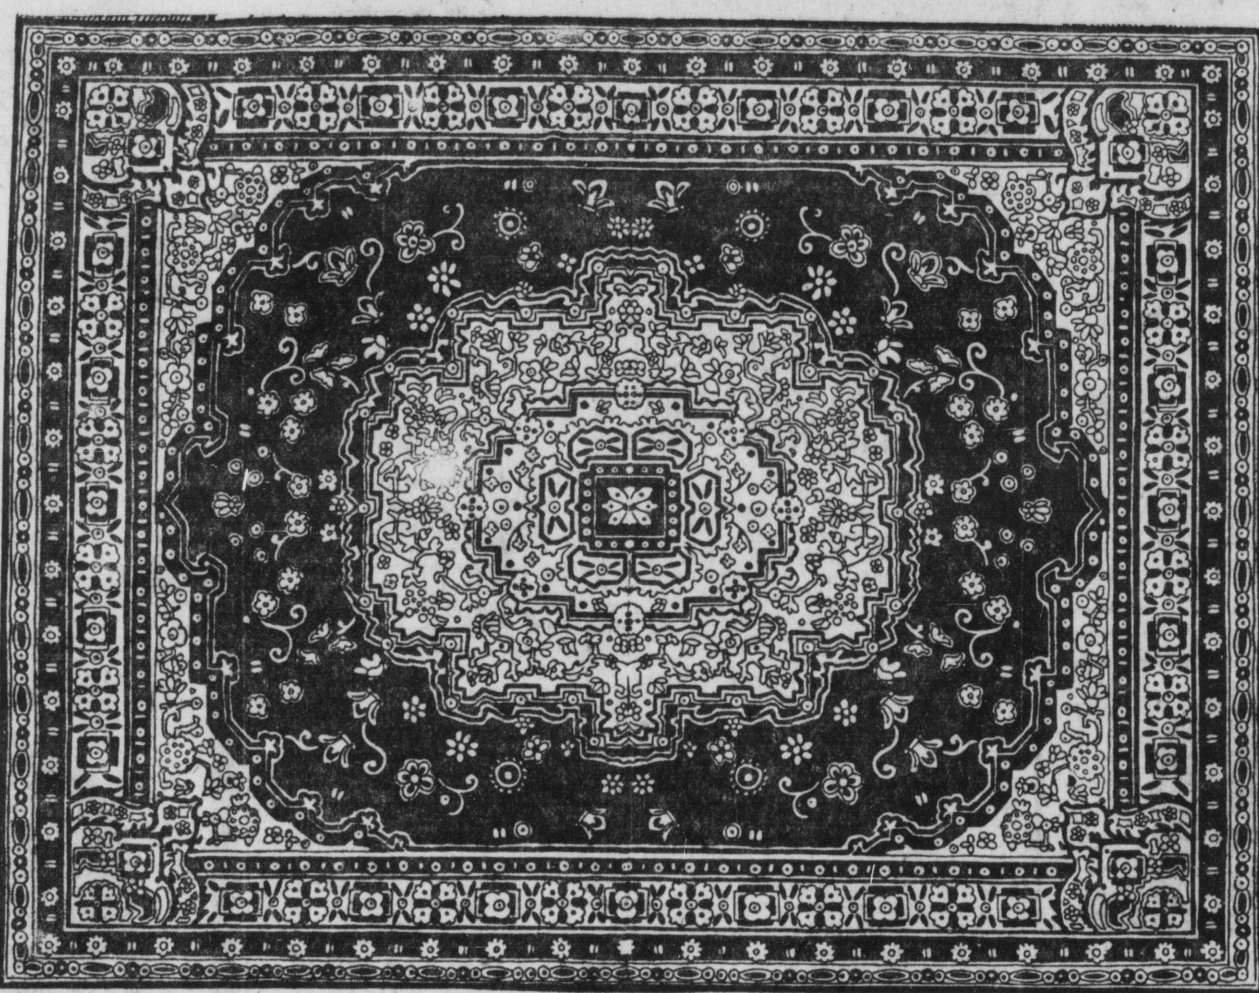

Three casinos are planned for a starter, at Corfu, Loutrakis and Aidypso, at a minimum value of $120,000 each. The government will provide free ground and permit the importation free from duty of luxurious furnishings. It will take 10 per cent of the gross profits to improve local public works.

ports and plains, and concentrated in any troublous spot, without the fatigue of forced marches, and before a savage enemy expects attack, he can be faced by a powerful and perfectly fresh force.

A number of these aeroplanes have already been delivered and satisfactorily tested, so that within a very few months the authorities will have a unique but substantial movable force ready to put down trouble in any part of the dominions nominally ruled by King Feisal.

The Mesopotamian Arabs are fine hand-to-hand fighters and although they are a bit scared of aeroplanes, they are much more impressed by the appearance of a substantial force of infantry. British war chiefs will watch the experiment with intense interest and if it is successful the policy of air defense will be tried in other parts of the empire.

ESTIMATE COSTS OF TELEPHONES FOR FARMERS

A high class automatic telephone system serving the rural communities can be installed at approximately $100 an instrument, with a monthly operating cost of $1, in the opinion of telephone experts, according to H. B. Woodrugh, secretary of the board of directors of the Orange County Farmers' and Merchants' association.

Woodrugh has been active since the meeting of the board of directors a week ago and today said that he had discussed with a number of experts the probable cost of installation of a system at this time.

Sentiment of the farmers of the county with reference to carrying out plans of the association is to be ascertained by canvassing members of the farm centers of the county as the monthly meetings are held.

The Fullerton farm center will meet tonight, when D. C. Drake, director of the association, will present an outline of the plans under which installation is contemplated. The directors have no definite proposition to submit at this time, and if sentiment of the farmers is in favor of the installation of a system at the cost as approximately, definite steps will be taken to get concrete facts as to costs.

At the meeting of the Tustin farm center last Friday night, more than half of the sixty-five members present declared they were interested in the movement, and would like to have additional details. W. M. Belding, a director of the association, presented the proposition.

Woodrugh is of the opinion that five exchanges should be located in the county outside the cities, with their location being such that should the cities desire to come in at some later date exchange accommodations could be provided without a great deal of extra cost. The automatic system, he says, eliminates the heavy expense of maintaining a large force of telephone operators at each exchange.

STREET CAR SERVICE URGED FOR WEST END

Local street car service to the West end and improvement of sanitary and civic conditions will be feature discussions of the semi-monthly meeting of the West End improvement association to be held at the Franklin school at 7 o'clock tonight, according to J. C. Hamill, president of the association, which was organized recently.

The association now has a membership of thirty and it is increasing very rapidly. It is expected that at least one hundred of the residents of the West end will be present tonight to hear and take part in the discussions.

The transportation committee, consisting of Hamill, the Rev. A. C. Basney, pastor of the Reorganized Latter Day Saints church, and E. W. Water, is expected to make a report on its negotiations with the Pacific Electric company to extend local street car service to Arcadia street. The association is endeavoring to secure a twenty-minute service.

"The West end is developing very rapidly and we are endeavoring to create a strong organization of residents for improving conditions there," said Hamill. "We hope to have every live-wire resident associated with us and urge everyone who can to be present tonight."

TAXPAYERS FILE THEIR REPORTS ON INCOMES

Income taxpayers in large numbers today availed themselves of the opportunity to visit E. B. Burns, income tax collector for Orange county, at his headquarters in the council chamber at the city hall.

For the purpose of assisting those who desire information in connection with income tax problems, Burns will be in his office from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m., daily until March 15, when the drive is scheduled to close.

Burns today advised those sending checks to be particular to see that these are properly endorsed and made payable to the proper parties. In connection with checks, he stressed the necessity for making these payable to the Collector of Internal Revenue, rather than to individuals.

Remittance Precautions. "Some of those sending checks seem to think they should be made payable to John P. Carter," said Burns. "This is erroneous. Checks should not be filled out in the name of Carter, or any other individual."

"Those sending remittances in this way should use individual checks and fill them out to the Collector of Internal Revenue. In this way much confusion will be avoided."

"In lieu of personal checks, those submitting returns may use drafts or cashiers' checks. In this event, however, the drafts, or cashiers' checks, should be made payable to self, and then endorsed to the Collector of Internal Revenue."

"Bank officials in making out checks for their clients should not use the stamp, 'John P. Carter.' Banks can assist us very materially by advising their clients as to these matters."

Urges Personal Calls. Burns said that Orange county citizens had shown a commendable spirit in co-operating with his office and many inquiries had been received. He again pointed out that he could not answer telephone calls in advising taxpayers, and urged all those seeking information to call at the city hall.

"Although there is always more or less misunderstanding as to income tax reports," Burns said, "these matters can be speedily cleared up if those in doubt will call personally."

"It is well to bear in mind that those liable for a report included all whose gross income was $5000 or over. If married, the aggregate of income of wife and husband is gross income. Reports are required also from married persons whose net income was $2000 or more. If you are single, and your income was $1000 or more, you are expected to file a report."

Burns pointed out that net income means after all deductions are made, except the exemptions.

"If your net income is more than the stipulated amounts and less than the exemptions, you must file a report," said Burns.

All corporations and partnership concerns must file reports, irrespective of whether their operations show loss or gain, Burns declared.

PICTURE OF FATHER DESCRIBES HIS SON

Police authorities, hunting today for Bob Phelps, an alleged thief, looked to heredity for aid in their search.

They were provided with a photograph of Phelps' father for the purpose of identifying the son.

The younger Phelps is said not only to have inherited a strong resemblance to his father, but also to appear older than his 28 years. The picture of the father, therefore, would serve the desired purpose, it was thought.

Phelps is accused, according to information given the local authorities, of having stolen a dress suit, shoes, hose, a suit case, a woman's watch, a Winchester repeating shotgun, and a small sum of money from H. H. Williams, 845 North Lucia avenue, Redondo Beach. The watch was engraved with the name "Grace Williams."

Phelps was further described as 5 feet 10 inches tall, 165 pounds in weight, dark hair, and slightly lame in one leg. He wore hiking trousers, high top boots, a light cap and a tan coat with knit cuffs and collar.

Williams is a son of Lewis P. Williams, 1236 West Fourth street, Santa Ana.

CAR OVERTURNS BUT DRIVER NOT INJURED

Although his car was overturned in a collision with another car, S. Scott Prather was not injured, it was shown today in a report of the accident made at police headquarters by Prather. The name of the owner of the other car was not reported.

THE FAMOUS SOLDIER
Colonel Dan Morgan Smith to Speak
In Tustin

Colonel Dan Morgan Smith, leader of the "Battalion of Death," 1st Battalion, 358th Infantry, 90th Division, A. E. F., during the late World War will speak at the School Auditorium Tuesday, February 7, at 7:30 p. m.

He will tell of his experiences in the war while in service overseas. Colonel Smith took part in the St. Mihiel drive at Faye-en-Haye and his battalion was a part of the American forces which advanced on Hill No. 350-4 Les Quatre Chemins, where the battalion, surrounded by three German Regiments, fought its way through and was given the name of the "Battalion of Death." Colonel Smith possesses most unusual talents as a descriptive speaker which, coupled with a magnetic power seldom seen, affords a rare opportunity of intense interest and instructive value.

The speaking tour of Col. Smith is under the auspices of the California Anti-Saloon League.

The admission to all of Colonel Smith's lecture is free.

ELKS TO SUBMIT IMPROVEMENT PROPOSAL

Proud of every feature and department of their lodge home except, according to Secretary W. W. Wasser, the lodge room proper, members of Santa Ana Lodge No. 794, B. P. O. E. today were awaiting the presentation tomorrow night to the board of directors and building committee of the Elks' Building association of architects' plans for making extensive improvements in the room.

The improvements will cost between $15,000 and $20,000, it is expected. Removal of the stage and installation of new chairs, new draperies and furnishings and other features that will make the lodge room as attractive as some of the best in the state, is contemplated in the plans being developed. Removal of the stage means that entertainment features of the future will be given in the basement.

The directors have called a special meeting of the stockholders of the Elks' Building association for 8 o'clock next Tuesday evening prior to the regular lodge meeting. The purpose is to secure stockholders' approval of plans for negotiating a loan to carry out the improvements. Wasser stated today that the improvements would be made immediately following acceptance of the plans and action by the stockholders authorizing the directors to borrow the money.

R. R. COMMISSION DECISIONS OF MUCH
LOCAL IMPORTANCE

The La Habra Domestic Water company, operating in this county, has been granted a certificate by the railroad commission today permitting it to serve an enlarged area in accordance with an ordinance obtained from the county.

Another decision of local interest is the commission denied, without setting for public hearing, the application of the Coast Truck line for a certificate to operate auto freight service between San Diego and Los Angeles. A similar application of the company was recently denied after full hearing.

When a Woman Pays by Check!

A FEW YEARS AGO mere man was pleased to poke fun at woman and her checking account.

As in other business matters, woman has given man something to think about in her quick grasp of finance, her ability as a housewife to make every dollar work its utmost for her family.

Nowadays, woman pays by check, is careful to keep her bank account straight, causes the bank less trouble than many species of the genus homo!

Through her check, she asserts her individuality, her concession to time-savers and convenience, and places herself a step forward toward her rightful station in life's affairs.

REDUCE LEAD OF FULLERTON IN CLASS RACE

As a result of the excellent attendance at the Men's Community Bible class here yesterday, the Santa Ana class, headed by the Rev. F. T. Porter, made a long stride forward in its efforts to defeat the Fullerton class organized by the Rev. John T. Houser.

Yesterday's attendance, according to announcement today by the Rev. Mr. Porter, was 345, as against 358 for the Fullerton class. This gives Fullerton a lead of thirty-one points. Odd fellows, grocers and real estate men helped swell yesterday's attendance here. Elks, Masons and other lodge members will turn out in large numbers next Sunday.

Among those who addressed the class were Freeman H. Bloodgood and J. S. Smart. The former spoke upon "Finding a Kingdom," while the latter stressed the importance of maintaining a high moral standard in striving for business success.

"A sheriff went out on the desert searching for a criminal," said Bloodgood, "but he found a man. When the sheriff was overcome by heat, and almost famished, it was the prisoner who found a spring and brought a hatful of water. Thus it is with all men. We may start out seeking a small thing and, by diligent searching, find the kingdom."

MOSCOW FLOWER SHOPS OPEN ONCE MORE

MOSCOW, Feb. 6 — Gradually Moscow's main shopping streets are receiving their pre-war aspects. Nearly every store is now open on the Arbat, one of the best known trading streets, and Kuznetski Most, Perovskaya and Tverskaya are rapidly being converted back into a semblance of their pre-communist days.

Several department stores opened recently, their broad illuminated window fronts adding immensely to the cheerfulness of the street scene in the evening. Candy shops and bakeries, with French pastry, are flourishing up and down all three streets. They are nearly always crowded from 6 o'clock on.

Boot and shoe stores have become almost as plentiful as tobacco shops in America. Moscow has more churches, boot and shoe shops, and barber shops than any city of any size in the world. The barber shops, however, have not reopened as yet in great numbers.

Newsies Return
Newsies have finally reappeared on the street corners, with their bundles of Pravdas, Izvestias and Ekonomicheskaya Zhiznis, and occasional copies of the two privately-owned dramatic papers now being published in Moscow, at 200 roubles per copy.

Moscow's newsies, however, are aged women, who stand quietly and miserably against the walls of the buildings, mutely appealing to passersby, or occasionally reminding them in shaky voices that "est" (here are) copies of Pravda, etc.

The sidewalk of the Arbat and Kuznetski Most are crowded with hurrying shoppers from 6 o'clock on. The evening is the shopping time in Moscow. Everybody works during the day. The first toys recently reappeared in the display windows of the department stores and of the several top shops, attracting yearning eyes of the street urchins, little rows of whom may be seen almost every evening standing with their cheeks close to the window-panes, peering in at the wooden animals, the rag dolls and the mechanical toys.

Toys Are Quaint
Many of the latter were made in Soviet factories in Moscow, where former peasants and workmen have become skilled in modeling quaint mechanical nursery toys from wood—donkeys that walk and kick, barnyards full of tiny wooden horses and cows and pigs, grotesque country-folk who bow to each other, etc. The other toys, however, are relics of pre-war stocks.

Little fur stores are re-opening in numbers, stocked principally with second-hand "shubas" (fur overcoats) and old skins. New furs are extremely difficult to find, except at fabulous prices.

Two large flower shops recently resumed, one on Arbat and one on Kuznetski. The florists report fair sales. The flowers run in immense white chrysanthemums, grown in hothouses.

Clothing stores have limited assortments, principally pre-war goods or knitted goods made in the government cloth mills—including excellent sweaters, socks, and plain cotton shirts, largely working shirts. The display windows are generally arranged on the catalogue plan prevailing in England, the merchant putting everything he has on display, aiming to attract by the largeness and completeness of the showing.

"SHERLOCK HOLMES" QUILTS
WEBSTER, Mass., Feb. 6—Ernest Arsenault is back at a bench in Oxford, a correspondence school detective disillusioned by contact with courts and with the State Constabulary. For weeks he had applied himself to instructions "how to become a detective." Qualified, he thought, he wrote under an assumed name to Nils Peterson, postmaster at Dore, a nearby village, that he was a detective who "always got his man and worked in secret." Arrested and convicted of impersonating an officer, Arsenault paid the small fine, then took out of his pocket a gaudy diploma, which he tore up, remarking his detective days were done.

PORTLAND TO FIGHT PACIFIC SHIP POOL

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 6.—Portland will continue its opposition to the proposed Pacific coast shipping pool as proposed at the recent San Francisco conference, according to announcement by H. B. Van Duser, president of the Chamber of Commerce, following a meeting of the chamber's foreign trade committee, at which the subject was discussed. J. C. Ainsworth, president of the Columbia-Pacific Shipping company, and W. D. B. Dodson, executive secretary of the chamber, will leave tomorrow for Washington as representatives of this port to attend the hearing called by the federal shipping board on the proposal.

ALL SEATS SOLD FOR REALTORS' BANQUET

Reservations for the first annual inaugural banquet and ball of the Santa Ana Realty board at St. Ann's Inn tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock, were completely sold out at 9 o'clock this morning, and the committee in charge today directed its attention to final details for the big affair. Two hundred tickets were sold, including those reserved by the board for special guests, of which there will be approximately sixty.

There will be three-minute talks by one representative from each of several local organizations, with three or four addresses by men prominent in the real estate business in Southern California. The inaugural address will be by Freeman H. Bloodgood, president of the Santa Ana board.

SUPERSTITIOUS? HERE'S SOME NEW ONES

LONDON, Jan. 31.—In the English royal family there are current a number of superstitions concerning weddings.

For example the writer is quite sure that the Princess Mary could not be persuaded to sign her name on her wedding day until after the wedding has taken place. It is one of the oldest superstitions in the English royal family that for a princess of it to sign her name on her wedding day until after the wedding would be a most unlucky thing for her to do.

On the morning of the wedding of the present Queen of Norway, which took place at Buckingham palace, it became urgently necessary for the then Princess Maude to put her signature to a legal document in connection with her private affairs. It was essential that the document should be signed by her in her maiden name. She meant to have signed it the day before her wedding but forgot to do so. She absolutely refused to sign it on the day of her wedding until after her marriage, and thereby put herself to a great deal of trouble and legal expense over the signing of the document.

Another wedding superstition prevailing in the royal family is that it is lucky for the royal bride to be able to see the sky on waking on the morning of her wedding day. It is extremely unlikely that the Princess Mary will sleep on the eve of her wedding day with the curtains in her bedroom drawn. Her Royal Highness will be sure to draw them back so that on waking she may behold the sky. This superstition also prevails in the Spanish royal family, and it is customary for members of it the night before their wedding to sleep in the open if the weather permits.

It would be regarded as an unlucky thing by the Princess Mary for her to see her father before she sees her mother on her wedding day. What will happen on the morning of the princess's wedding will be that her mother will come to her room ere she rises, will kiss her on both cheeks and wish her all prosperity and happiness in her future married life. It has always been regarded as unlucky in the English royal family to make use of a wedding present before the wedding.

All the princess's presents will be kept in a room at St. James's palace, together with the presents sent to Lord Lascelles, until after the wedding.

There is an old saying current in the royal family concerning a royal bride. It runs:

"With the loss of the shoes, gloves or veil of her wedding day,
The luck of the bride will soon pass away."

The shoes, gloves and veil worn by Queen Victoria at her wedding are still preserved at Windsor. The shoes, gloves and veil worn by Queen Alexandra and Queen Mary on their wedding days are still carefully preserved by each of their majesties and the Princess Mary will be equally careful not to lose these reminders of her wedding day.

HOUSING PLAN ACCEPTED
NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—The success of Samuel Untermyer's $100,000,000 home-building program was virtually assured by an offer of the Thompson-Starrett company, general contractors, to undertake the work at cost and the acceptance by the building trades council of the $1.2 day a man saving in labor cost. Insurance companies, under leadership of the Metropolitan Life, have agreed to furnish the money as soon as the law is amended to permit their investment in tenements. The plan calls for the immediate erection of 1500 apartment houses capable of housing 45,000 families of 225,000 persons.

Notice to Redmen—Osage Tribe will have a large class adoption on Tuesday, February 7, the best team in Southern Cal. will confer the degree. All members are expected to be present. Corn and venison. By Order of Sachem.

RUSSIA'S POPULATION DECREASES 18,000,000

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 — A decrease of about 18,000,000 in the population of soviet Russia as compared with pre-war estimates is reported by the bolshevik press, according to a statement issued by the commerce department.

For 1921, the statement said, the population of soviet Russia was placed at 130,707,000 by a bolshevik census.

BURST PIPES NO 'ACT OF GOD'

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 — Justice Page in the appellate division of supreme court reversed a decision dismissing a $3000 suit against the Oleite corporation, which was alleged by Woodruff and company to be responsible for the loss of 1500 barrels of potatoes. Burst water pipes in the Oleite building were alleged to have flooded the complainant's cellar.

The lower court held the whole affair was an "act of God," but Justice Page held the "act of God" terminated with the freezing of the pipes.

SEX OF CHICKS KNOWN AS SOON AS HATCHED

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 — Means of discovering, upon hatching, the sex of a chick—formerly unknown for six to eight weeks—has been found by inheritance tests by the Storrs Experiment station at Connecticut Agricultural college which on March 1 purposes to distribute to certain farmers birds of known sex.

The announcement was made today by Dr. Leslie C. Dunn, attached to the station, who is attending the poultry show here. Dr. Dunn said this discovery was of great economic importance to the chicken raisers.

Tests have shown, Dr. Dunn said, that plumage colors are inherited in criss-cross fashion; that is, a male chick has characteristics of the female parent and the female chick of the male parent. He added that chicks usually hatched fifty-fifty and that no method had been found for controlling sex.

WILL DECIDE ON NEW LOCATION FOR LAUNDRY TOMORROW

Board of Directors Believe Present Site Too Valuable as Business Property

WILL ERECT NEW PLANT

Owners Confronted by Ever-Increasing Development of Industrial Area

An important project in connection with the Santa Ana Steam Laundry will come up for consideration at the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Santa Ana Steam Laundry to be held at James's gold room at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The project is abandonment of the valuable property at the southwest corner of Broadway and Fifth streets as a site for the laundry and the erection of a new plant at the corner of Second and Spurgeon streets, or at some location farther removed from the business section of the city.

There are sixty stockholders in the company and it is expected that the keen interest of owners in the proposed change in location will result in a large number of them being present.

In the opinion of some of the directors and stock owners the location at Fifth and Broadway has become too valuable for the purposes of a laundry. Should decision be made to move the plant, the corner will be sold to private parties or improved with business buildings by the laundry company.

It is said that since the purchase of the corner at Second and Spurgeon as a site for a new plant, the point has been raised that if a plant were to be built there the company in ten years probably would be in the same position it is in today—the site too valuable for the line of business.

For this reason, it is said that consideration is being given to a proposal to secure a site still farther removed from the heart of the business district.

Against removal from Broadway is the claim that the company would have to sacrifice about $25,000, of which $10,000 is represented in the well from which the laundry gets its water. The well is 346 feet deep and is producing water that is particularly valuable for laundry work. It is a soft water and has other features that make it valuable to the company.

PAYS $10 FINE

M. Maldonado was at liberty today by virtue of a $10 fine paid to City Recorder W. F. Heathman Saturday on a charge of being drunk. Two "John Doe" Mexicans were taken into custody by Police Officer Combs and Moncrief Saturday night on West Fifth street near the bridge over the Santa Ana river, charged with being drunk. They were expected to appear in the recorder's court today.

Attention, Poultryman. The Register to Help You in Regular Column

Do you raise poultry? If so, you must have had numerous interesting experiences. Other poultry raisers would find these experiences interesting.

The Register asks, therefore, that you and all other poultry raisers send in contributions to its poultry column, which will start next Wednesday.

E. W. Jardine, who has had a wide acquaintance among poultry raisers of Orange county, will edit the column and will gather items of interest and advice on poultry raising.

It is estimated that there are about 200,000 chickens in Orange county. The flocks are increasing. It is predicted that the Costa Mesa region will eventually be an important factor in the industry.

The Register will publish the column weekly, believing that it will help to develop the industry.

TRAVELER WILL TALK HERE ON EUROPE AND NEAR EAST SITUATION

Members of the First Congregational Brotherhood are anticipating with eagerness the talk on "Europe and the Near East" to be given by that church next Tuesday evening by the Rev. Henry Kendall Booth, pastor of the First Congregational church, Long Beach.

Dr. Booth returned recently from a trip through Europe and the Near East. He attended the International Rotarian convention at Edinburgh, Scotland, visited the various countries of Europe and spent some time in Jerusalem and that vicinity.

His talk will be largely descriptive according to announcement. Members of the brotherhood are to be accompanied by women guests. Dinner will be served by the women of the church at 6:30 p. m. and those planning to attend are urged to make reservations.

LONELY PERSONS HEAR CURE FOR THEIR WOES

"The Lonely Woman" was the title of the picture and "Lonely Easterners in California" was the subject of the sermon last night at the First Congregational church. The minister, the Rev. Perry Frederick Schrock, spoke of the woman of the picture and also read a newspaper account of a lonely girl in Los Angeles who, because of her loneliness, attempted to commit suicide last week.

The speaker said in part: "Not all lonely persons are these two descriptions. There are many lonely persons in the world and Southern California has its full quota of them. There are more of them here than in many other parts of the country because there are more strangers here than elsewhere. And not all of them are women. The number of lonely men will probably

WATER COMPANY TO DECIDE ON TUNNEL LAND

S. A. V. I. Stockholders Will Meet Tomorrow Morning at Office In Orange

Many stockholders of what is perhaps the oldest company in the county were considering plans for attending the forty-fourth annual meeting of the Santa Ana Valley Irrigation company, to be held at the company office in Orange at 9 a. m. tomorrow.

Perhaps one of the most important matters to be presented for action by the stockholders will be the proposal that there be purchased eleven acres of land at Olive, belonging to the Olive Milling company, founder of the flour mills at that point, at a consideration of $3400.

With the land in possession of the company, it is said that certain possible objectionable features that may develop in the future may be averted.

The land is adjacent to the property upon which the reservoir of the company is built and its acquisition is considered very important to the future of the organization.

The Santa Ana Valley Irrigation company was organized in 1877 by a few of the pioneers of the valley and it has continued to function since that date. It is performing an indispensable service to Santa Ana valley—without it, the valley could not have attained the high degree of intensive cultivation and prosperity of today, in the opinion of members.

Selection of an engineer to fill the vacancy created by the death of H. Clay Kellogg is in the hands of the board of directors, and it is not expected that this matter will come before the stockholders' meeting.

The company does not employ an engineer by the year, but appoints such an expert, and his services are paid for as they are needed. It is said that so far as the immediate future is concerned there are under consideration no projects that will require the services of an engineer. It is probable, therefore, that no appointment will be made for some time. An engineer of Santa Ana is the only one who has so far filed an application for the position, it was stated.

CHECK PASSER SOUGHT HERE NABBED IN NORTH

John Jordan, alias Joe Pruitt, alias J. A. Smith, J. T. Dodson and several other names that came conveniently to hand for the alleged purpose of writing worthless checks, is under arrest in Oakland on a check charge according to advices received here, where the man is wanted for similar activities, involving a sum of about $85.

Some of the other names he used in this county were A. C. Barber, J. E. Scott, Jim Scott and Bob Sherman. When the local authorities issued circulars concerning him, a reply was received from the Long Beach police department, stating that Jordan was in custody at Oakland.

YOUTH OF TODAY PREFER HIGHER GRADE BOOKS

Diamond Dick and Nick Carter Give Way to Volumes on Foreign Travel

(BY ELEANOR ELLIOTT)

"Tell me the books you read, and I will tell you what manner of man you be."

Thus declares the modern soothsayer, continuing in the same vein. "A man is known by the books he keeps."

And who shall judge a man's mental attainments as evidenced by his choice of books, like one who caters to that particular need of mankind—the desire to own books?

Nor who has greater power in shaping the likes and dislikes of readers than that same "dealer in romance and story as found between the covers of a book?"

Beginning with childhood days, when the "very small person" first learns what a wonderful world lies in wait for him as soon as he grasps the meaning of peculiar combinations of wiggly marks, that small person's whole mental pabulum may be wisely adjusted with due regard to the proper calories needed for correct mental growth. And nine times out of ten, the bookstores in the city have a greater influence in determining the character of such mental food, than school, library and home.

Where are the shilling shockers and penny dreadfuls of a few years ago?

Adios, Cap Collier

A survey of the shelves of a local bookstore reveals their complete absence, and as conditions are in Santa Ana, so are they elsewhere. "Frank Fearless and Ralph Dreadnaught have gone to join Diamond Dick, Nick Carter and old Cap Collier" today stated Robert Brown as we chatted over a new edition of Kipling.

"Boys of today would scarcely know what you meant were you to speak of one of those old-timers. The Scout commission has issued a list of nearly 300 books suitable for a boy's library, and those are the ones for which the sale is steady." And he handed us one of the neatly bound volumes embellished on its cover with the Scout's insignia.

"For the smaller fry, there are all manner of fascinating nature stories. Thornton Burgess struck a popular note with his Mother West Wind stories and has repeated his success with his subsequent one of the folk living in the "Green Meadows."

Another delightful series was found to be in the Twin series by Lucy Fitch Perkins and these take the child reader to every land where the adventures and daily living of a pair of merry twins of that particular country, are encountered in a charming way, and the pictures given of those foreign climes are truly delightful.

Never-failing Books

"There are a few books whose appeal is universal," declared Brown. "Our fathers read Robinson Crusoe, Gulliver's Travels, Pinocchio and a few such favorites and our sons and our sons' sons will find them just as thrilling. Like the old Bible stories, they stand immovable in the flood of other books."

In verse for children, we found that the demand for Stevenson's "Child's Garden of Verses" was unchanged from year to year. Every child loves the charming verses many of which were first told to that young step-son of whom R. L. S. was so fond.

With adult readers, we found that tastes varied as widely in books as in dress and food. And all tastes were provided for.

There is a constant demand for books of travel since man will always be subject to wanderlust, and if circumstances forbids journeys far afield, a book descriptive of those far places one longs to see, is the best substitute.

Volumes in Demand

In lighter vein, "The Pride of Palomar" has been a steady local favorite ever since it was published, and as conditions are in California and Santa Ana, so are they all over the United States.

"If Winter Comes" has also been a prime favorite, while Gene Stratton Porter's first California book, "Her Father's Daughter" has had a remarkable sale.

"A peculiar thing is the steady demand for Helen Hunt Jackson's Ramona" stated Brown, who offered his idea of the explanation in the fact that tourists find their interest aroused in the story by proximity to the scene wherein it was laid, and wish to re-read it to familiarize themselves with it.

An interesting set of non-fiction books were those of Harry Emerson Fosdick and Roger Babson: "The Fundamentals of Prosperity" of the latter author, having been reviewed recently in the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church by the Rev. J. A. Stevenson, who plans to review others by the same author, from time to time, and who declares them invaluable to the young man in the business world.

CAVERN OF MYSTERY IN CANYON BIDS ADVENTURESOME TO ENTER

Here is a picture of the mystery cave in Wood canyon, below Arch Beach. With a wall of rock just back of the camera it was impossible to get a picture showing the full sixty-five or seventy feet of the cave's length. At the left is the trunk of a twisted willow. Standing at the edge of the cave is Joseph Thurston of Laguna Beach. Thurston's father discovered this cave fifty years ago.

Hidden Behind Giant Walls Are Pioneer Day Remnants

By T. E. STEPHENSON

A cave around which clings the mystery of by-gone years to which is tied much of conjecture and imagination, lies in an out-of-the-way canyon three miles inland from where the Aliso creek has broken a way through rough mountains into the ocean.

How fondly do our minds, be we children looking out upon the world in wonder or grown-ups for whom some of the bloom of the peach has been rubbed away, respond to a touch of romance and mystery!

And it is this touch of the unknown that will lead us today off the beaten path into a side canyon of Wood canyon, which itself is but a branch of the Aliso.

What a contrast is sometimes found in a turn of the road! And in the hills how frequently and with what ease does scenery change as one walks in a canyon bottom or upon its sides!

In today's journey into the foothills it will be contrasts that will add to the charm that the lower Aliso canyon holds for him who wills to drink it.

Visit Mystery Cave

A week ago in the trip off the beaten path we climbed the ridge of the Laguna canyon and dropped into the upper part of Wood canyon and tramped through its green pastures and beside its wooded arroyo, with its grey moss oaks. Today we will enter Wood canyon from the lower end and for a mile or two will traverse its green flats until we reach the point where we will leave our automobile and be piloted into the fastness where lies an ancient cave of mystery.

I had heard of this cave, I think first through Nick Isch and Elmer Jahraus of Laguna Beach, months ago. They had called it Robber's cave. I found that this cave looms large in tradition around the beach town. I had been interested in the old Indian camp grounds on some of the points along the rugged seacoast, and to my inquiry as to whether this cave might not have been at one time occupied by Indians I was told that in appearance its occupation was more modern.

"Pegs were driven into the wall, and are still there," I was told. But let us not begin a description of our destination so early in the tale. Oftentimes the journey to a place pays as much in satisfaction as does the point to which we travel. I'll not say that this is to be a journey of that kind, for to me it was not.

A few days ago it was my good fortune to have Joseph Thurston of Laguna Beach guide me to the cave. Everybody who knows anything of Laguna Beach knows Thurston, and many of them need not be informed that it was some fifty-one years ago that G. W. Thurston and his family settled upon a homestead at the mouth of the Aliso. There for many years they struggled against the adverse conditions that beset pioneers, who went into out-of-the-way places to make their homes.

Animals Attack Stock

Wild animals attacked their stock. Herds of deer made it almost impossible to raise hay and grain. "We tried every conceivable way to keep the deer off the alfalfa," said Thurston, "and most of our efforts failed completely. We stalked two of our dogs in the alfalfa, and, do you know, the deer were not harmed, and they ate alfalfa up to within ten feet of where the dogs were stalked."

Far removed from neighbors, children were born and brought up without aid of doctor or nurse. For several years' drinking water was hauled from a spring three miles back in the mountains.

But those years of adversity long since passed.

It was one day when the father of the family returned from herding cattle that he brought with him the strange tale of a cave. In his hands he brought with him pieces of a stove, a piece of an anvil, a piece of a bellows.

According to the memory of Joseph Thurston, who was then but a lad, the pieces of iron were rusty, indicating that they had been in the cave for many years.

The story of the discovery of the cave by his father a half century ago was recounted to me by Thurston as we drove by automobile across the mesa leading to the Aliso's mouth. A man was plowing in the field stretching off toward the hills. This field was used last year

OUTLINES NEEDS OF BIRCH PARK PLAY CENTER

Birch Park, Santa Ana's "outdoor auditorium," will be greatly improved and beautified if the determination of the city to appropriate $10,000 of the proposed bond issues is approved by the voters at the April election, according to a statement by George Minter, city park commissioner, here today.

Among the improvements contemplated by the park commission are: Installation of a modern lighting system.

All wires to be placed underground.

Improved underground sprinkling system.

Laying of cement sidewalks.

Erection of a handsome and ornamental fountain.

Installation of ornamental lamp standards.

Discussing these improvements, Minter said that fully fifteen thousand dollars could be spent in worthwhile additions to the park, but it was believed that with $10,000 the city would be able to do the things actually necessary to the future maintenance of the park.

"Birch Park is Santa Ana's great outdoor auditorium," said Minter, "and it is very necessary that we do everything possible to add to its usefulness and attractiveness."

"Our people use this park approximately nine months out of the year for gatherings of various kinds, and a number of improvements are essential at this time. There is urgent need for a good lighting system, and the other proposed improvements are equally as important. If we are to protect the lawns, we must have pavements. Should the voters approve the bond issue, we will try to make the park one of the most beautiful in Southern California. Santa Ana's progress demands that we take this step."

Doty today.

The meeting will be held in Legion hall, in the basement of the Orange city hall, and dinner will be served by the Woman's Auxiliary of the Orange Post of the American Legion.

Dr. M. M. Menges, president of the society, will preside. Dentists from every section of the county were expected to attend.

WILL ELECT DIRECTORS

Construction of New Storage Warehouse Expected to Increase Functioning

Costa Mesa apple growers today were participating with lively interest the dinner and business meeting scheduled to be held at the Costa Mesa church Tuesday, February 14, at 1:30 p. m. According to a statement by H. B. Woodrough here today fully sixty representative growers will attend the meeting.

Business to come before the newly created Costa Mesa Apple Growers' association will include the election of a board of directors and a general discussion of ways and means for furthering the interests of the apple growers of Orange county.

At the same time reports will be received from the several delegates recently named to attend the meeting of the Yucalpa Apple Growers' association, February 8.

Fully 200 apple and pear growers were expected to attend the Yucalpa meeting, including a number of growers from Orange county, and plans will be discussed looking to the formation of units to market the products of the southern district.

Discussing the meeting at Costa Mesa, Woodrough said that an acreage of fully 500 acres would be represented and some interesting reports would be made by the committees recently appointed to investigate the various plans outlined for the proper functioning of the Costa Mesa organization.

The building of an apple storage warehouse, the formation of a permanent marketing organization, and discussions of future planting and harvesting are expected to play a prominent part in the Costa Mesa meeting February 14.

by Thurston for growing great quantities of watermelons for the Laguna Beach market.

Plow Uncarths Pestic
"When I was here this morning waiting for you," I said to my companion, "I strolled off across the mesa and found an old Indian grinder that evidently was turned up by the plow."

And then as we rode on Thurston pointed out to me places where in years gone by he had discovered a decorated pestle and other relics of days when Indians had a village on the Aliso mesa.

And looking from the headland southeastward along the coast to the sea, I saw the moving picture of a sea, one could not do otherwise than wonder if it were this wonderful view of the coast that has caused the aborigines to place their wigwams upon the Aliso flats.

But we leave the magnificence of the shoreline, pause for a second to look down into the cove of the Aliso, where the moving picture of a sea, one could not do otherwise than wonder if it were this wonderful view of the coast that has caused the aborigines to place their wigwams upon the Aliso flats.

days surround the ruined adobe! But here is a strange circumstance. From this spot, so far as I know, no tradition comes down.

Unquestionably, the adobe was built by Mexicans, California Spaniards Indians, perhaps as an outpost of the San Juan Capistrano mission—who knows when and why?

Perhaps it was but a herder's home or the home of one of the early Yorbos or Carrillos.

"I know nothing about its early history," said Lewis P. Moulton of El Toro, on whose ranch the mound is located. "When I first knew the ranch there was a branch of the Yorba family living in an adobe, where the old oil well was put down a few years ago. The Serrano adobe was located on the Aliso creek, where the state highway now crosses. The adobe a mile or so east of El Toro was a Serrano adobe of more recent construction."

"In the early days, along in the seventies, a designated hill now called the San Joaquin hills near the Sepulveda hills, and the hills in the Wood canyon and lower Aliso section as the Yorba hills. This old adobe was in what we know as the Yorba hills. Whether the adobe had any connection with the Yorbos or dated further back, I don't know."

A Surprising Canyon
But we'll pause no longer at the spot where the adobe stood. It is but a couple of hundred yards to the opening of the draw, and it will be but a few minutes before we are convinced that the opening is, indeed, deceiving, for it is the entrance to one of the most surprising and interesting bits of canyon to be found in the coast hills.

We step through between some willows and rough sandstone boulders and there before us is our cave. It lies just back of the willows beneath a huge sandstone ledge, crested over with earth and roots, with ferns and there a carpet of green ferns clinging to the surface of the rock.

If measurements are to assist you in getting an understanding of what lies before us, let us have them. This cave is set at an angle, facing a rocky gorge. It is sixty-five or seventy feet long, from fifteen to twenty feet deep, and from six to twelve feet high.

On the floor of the cave, which is deep in sand that has dropped from the ceiling, are the remains of a rat, a snake, and the date of a newspaper beside the blackened sticks and ashes we are rather certain that was October 21, 1921, that some group of persons had responded to the lure of mystery that this wild spot holds forth.

Explaining the Cave
But it is not in evidence of recent visitation in which we were interested.

Toward the lower end on the ceiling are patches of ancient soot. And sticking out of the sand is a piece of rusty iron. It is an old stove lid, almost rusted through.

"That is, probably a part of the old stove my father found in this cave fifty years ago," declared Thurston. And, protected by the sand and the cave from the elements, it may well have been.

And here is another bit of rusted iron—a piece of a grate.

And here is an iron ring that might very well have been the girth ring of a saddle.

At the foot of the cave we found where dirt had been thrown up.

Can it be possible that treasure hunters whose diggings we have noticed in half a dozen places in the county, where strange rocks appear, have been here?

The hole seems to have been dug not over a foot or two in depth. Since visiting the place I have been told that when Mr. and Mrs. Brayton Norton and a party of friends from Laguna Beach spent a night at the cave some months ago, they found that this hole led into a shallow cavity beneath the bottom of the main cave.

But most convincing of all the signs of habitation years ago are the pegs in the wall and ceiling of the cave.

Holes were drilled into the sandstone to a depth of several inches, and into these holes pegs were driven, upon which the household might hang his coat or his hat, his venison or his mutton, his rifle or his six-shooter.

One of these pegs was quite conveniently situated so that a leg of venison might twirl and sizzle above the fire. Others were close to the edge of the cave so that, mayhap, the occupant seeking seclusion might drape thereon pieces of willow in camouflage—if one may apply a word that grew out of the World War to the life of some unknown human beings who lived in these mountains three score years or more ago.

Robber Lookout?
But as a natural hiding place, no screen would be needed, unless perhaps to keep close the glimmer of a campfire, for but a few yards across the steep stream bed rises another wall of uneven rock, and there upon a shelf is another peg. What could that shelf be put a place where some lookout for the robber band should rest at night? Screened by the willows just below, he had a wonderful view of the canyon.

My guide and I paused for a few minutes longer in our hasty search of the place. Beneath the covering of coarse cave sand we found what may have been the foundation stones of the ancient stove, or perhaps, can it be?

I say, can it be that here in this wilderness we have run a moonshiner's still to earth?

Shades of Demijohn!
For just outside the cave, where the bank of the stream has been taken away for a foot or two by the waters that came down from behind us during the recent rains there is disclosed the neck and other parts of a big demijohn!

Indeed, there is no telltale odor hanging roundabout. That demijohn was smashed years ago, I suspect, and whatever odor and cause of such odors there may have been long since vanished into the pure air of the great out-of-doors round about.

"I have made many inquiries concerning this old cave," said Thurston, "but I have never been able to get any line on its history. Old-time sheepherders knew nothing of its early history. As children, we always called it the hermit's cave. Why, I don't know. In later years, the cave has become popularly known around Laguna Beach as robbers' cave. So far as I know there is no more reason for calling it one than the other. This cave, of course, may have had some connection with the old adobe, but if so, that information, along with information concerning the 'dobe has vanished."

And while we talked we kept up our search for other things of interest, and it was but a few minutes before our exploring instincts had led us to points farther up this bit of a canyon.

We went back perhaps a hundred yards, just enough to drink in the fascination of this rugged and beautiful—just enough to convince me that any attempt to describe it in connection with other things that have been told in this article is impossible for lack of space.

Just let me point out upon a rock standing high above the bottom of the draw, a gnarled oak, one that has struggled against terrific odds, and has won a right to live on down through the ages. An acorn some centuries ago, no doubt long before it was possible for Spaniard or Mexican to have known of the cave down upon which it looks, fell into a tiny crevice, and there it sprouted. It fought a two-fold fight for life. The rocks offered but little in nourishment. Its trunk for three or four feet lies flat on the rock. The roots forced their way into every crevice of the huge rock, and finally rent it. Today, fifteen feet below the oak, pieces of the boulder have fallen away, and there is exposed a solid mat of tiny roots—a mat several feet in circumference.

And farther up are caves.

"Here's this guest chamber," declared Thurston facetiously, as we passed the first of these caves above the robber's cave.

And but a few yards on, the ravine's windings bring us to where the waters of the ages have washed out a passageway in sandstone, a passageway twenty-five or thirty feet deep and most of the way only three or four feet across.

I climbed to the topmost point on the south to look over a pile of sandstone through which I could see the blue sky.

As I scrambled through bramble to the entrance of the cave my sense of smell was faintly shocked by an odor that in itself spells caution.

And cautious I became, and, needless to say, when upon the sandy bottom of the cave I saw a set of small tracks leading into the cave's recesses, my exploration of that cave was at an end.

Looking up this canyon, we were beckoned by the wildness of it. It is steep, broken, yet all its windings leading back to the crest of hills north of the Thurston home in the Aliso, is a mass of oaks that like the oak on the bare rock by the big cave below have found this a spot in which to them life has been a joy.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PERIODICALS NOW IN NEW HANDS

BOSTON, Feb. 6.—The new trustees of the Christian Science Publishing society have taken over the publishing house and business. They are William P. McKenzie of Cambridge, James E. Patton and Fred H. Lamson of Boston.

Willis J. Abbott, the newly appointed editor of the Christian Science Monitor, is a native of Connecticut, and a grandson of the Reverend John S. C. Abbott of Maine, whose "Biography of Napoleon Bonaparte" was a famous book of the nineteenth century, and whose "History of Christianity" was one of the works in Mrs. Eddy's library. Mr. Abbott is a graduate of the University of Michigan, and has been all his life in journalistic and literary work. He served for many years as a Washington correspondent, and an editorial writer on the New York Sun, and has been editor-in-chief of prominent morning newspapers in Chicago and New York. He is the author of a number of volumes, mostly of biography and history and his writing on the United States Navy have been adopted by the Navy Department for use on the ships and in the Naval College at Annapolis. Mr. Abbott is a contributor to most of the magazines and was a regular writer for the Outlook, of which his uncle, Dr. Lyman Abbott is editor. He is a member of The Mother Church of Christian Science. His residence has been recently in New York City.

Albert F. Gilmore, the new editor of the Christian Science Journal and Sentinel, was born of New England parents, a descendant of the Pilgrims. He was educated in the schools of Maine and at Bates College, of the governing board of which he has long been a member. Mr. Gilmore was for several years an educator, having served as high school and academy principal and superintendent of public schools. He has also served as a legislator. For many years he was engaged in the business of educational publication in New York City. He is a writer and lecturer on nature subjects, and author of several books. Mr. Gilmore is a member of First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Brooklyn, N. Y., which he has served in various capacities, including that of First Reader. He has been a Christian Science practitioner for several years and is at present serving his fifth term as Committee on Publication for New York state.

The associate editors of the Journal and Sentinel are Mrs. Ella W. Hoag of Toledo, and Mr. Duncan Sinclair of Glasgow, Scotland.

The Christian Science periodicals and publishing business are therefore now back in the hands of The Mother Church after having been separated from it for nearly three years through the action of the former trustees in securing an injunction which was dissolved by the Supreme Court of Massachusetts November 23, 1921.

GRIZZLY BEAR GIVES BIRTH TO TRIPLETS

DENVER, Feb. 6.—Brien, big silver-tipped grizzly at the City park zoo is the proud father of triplets. Mattie, his 500-pound mate, gave birth to three cubs with a total weight of only a pound and a half. In a few years, barring bad luck, the half pound cubs should weigh a quarter of a ton each, zoo officials say.

LONELY PERSONS HEAR ABOUT CURE

equal the women. I have made a rash announcement. I have promised to tell the cure for loneliness. I shall attempt to fulfill that promise.

"If we are to prescribe a cure we must first diagnose the disease. What are the causes of loneliness? One of the causes is suggested by the picture—a heavy heart in the midst of hostile or indifferent neighbors. Here in California one will not find many hostile neighbors, but the indifference ones are legion. It is so easy to overlook the stranger who is living next door. The cold church is a contributing cause. Strangers find the atmosphere of some churches so cold that it would not melt ice cream when the temperature stands at 100 in the shade. Who wouldn't be lonely if he has been accustomed to a warm, friendly church home and homes into an ecclesiastical frigid zone?"

Cause of Loneliness.
"Another reason for loneliness is the fault of the lonely person himself. It is the lack of his own development. He has spent his days selling hardware or groceries or dry goods back in Iowa and now that he is away from the old store he can think of nothing else to do. His life, his interests have been limited to that one thing. Women do a similar thing. They are lonely because they have not developed their own internal resources."

"Another reason for loneliness is a mistaken loyalty to the past. Our text is a splendid example. Here were the poor Hebrews taken captive down to Babylon. It was hard to leave the old home, of course. But the country to which they went was just as good or better than the one they left and they had almost all of their friends and neighbors with them. They were musical folk and their Gentile neighbors asked them to sing. Some one of their poets thus wails:

'How shall we sing Jehovah's songs In a foreign land?
If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, Let my right hand forget her skill.
Let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth.
If I remember thee not, If I prefer not Jerusalem Above my chief joy.'

Iowa for Jerusalem.
"Substitute Iowa for Jerusalem and one would think it had been written in Southern California this past week! California is full of Back East Christians who were active church workers in the home church, but now they are listless and refuse to move their membership out here because they think that is being loyal to the old church. And the old church is wondering what in the world to do with the absent members who do not take their letters."

"The diagnosis indicates the remedy. We Californians need to wake up and warm up. We need to pay more attention to the persons who are looking for a friendly word. Our churches have a great ministry to render. 'I was a stranger and ye took me in' is a text we need to keep constantly before us.

"You lonely folk need to enlarge your own lives. The world consists of more than merchandise and real estate. Get busy and cultivate your own soul so that whether you live in Greenland's icy mountains or India's coral strand you will be able to appreciate the wonder and grandeur of the world in which you live.

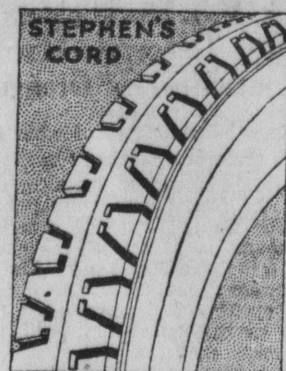

"And finally, Live in the present and future. The past is back East. Christian. Then you won't have time to be lonely."

Spencer Supporting Belt 801 Spurgoes church letter and be a California Christian. Then you won't have time to be lonely."

WOMEN DEMOCRATS NOW OUT OF JOBS
SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6.—Five women deputies in the office of the international revenue collector here, appointed under the Democratic regime, were dismissed by John P. McLaughlin, the new collector. McLaughlin, a Republican, announced recently that he expected to fill their places with Republicans.

The time in which property owners, within the sewer district created for sewerage West Santa Clara, Greenleaf and Nineteenth streets, might take over the contract for installation under private bids, expired Saturday, according to Street Superintendent Edward Dahl. Pernel Barnett, to whom was awarded the contract by the city council, has five days in which to sign the contract. He is expected to sign early this week. The Great Impersonation

By E. Phillips Oppenheim

(Chapter XIX Continued)

"Not for one moment. You see," she went on conversationally, "if you were really Everard, then I might be frightened, for some day or other I feel that if Everard comes here, the spirit of Roger Unthank will do him some sort of mischief."

"Why?" he asked.
"You don't know about these things, of course," she went on, "but Roger Unthank was in love with me, although I had scarcely ever spoken to him, before I married Everard. I think I told you that much yesterday didn't I? After I was married, the poor man nearly went out of his mind. I gave up his work and used to haunt the park here. One evening Everard caught him and they fought, and Roger Unthank was never seen again. I think that any one around here would tell you," she went on, dropping her voice a little, "that Everard killed Roger and threw him into one of those swampy places near the Black Wood, where a body sinks and sinks and nothing is ever seen of it again."

"Do not believe he did anything of the sort," Dominey declared.
"Oh, I don't know," she replied doubtfully. "Everard had a terrible temper, and that night he came home covered with blood, looking—awful! It was the night when I was taken ill."

"Well, no more tragedies," he insisted. "I have come up to remind you that we have guests here. When are you coming down to see them?"

"You say 'we' just as though you were really my husband," she declared.

"You must not tell any one else of your fancy," he warned her.

"She acquiesced at once.
"Oh, I quite understand," she assured him. "I shall be very, very careful. And, Everard, you have such clever guests, not at all the sort of people my Everard would have had here, and I have been out of the world for so long, that I am afraid I shan't be able to talk to them. Nurse Alice is tremendously impressed. I am sure I should be terrified to sit at the end of the table, and Caroline will hate not being hostess any longer. Let me come down at tea-time and after dinner, and slip into things gradually. You can easily say that I am still an invalid, though of course I'm not at all."

"You shall do exactly as you choose," he promised as he took his leave.

So when the shooting party tramped into the hall that afternoon, a little weary, but flushed with exercise and the pleasure of the day's sport, they found, seated in the corner of the room, behind the great round table upon which tea was set out, a rather pale but extraordinarily child-like and fascinating woman, with large, sweet eyes which seemed to be begging for their protection and sympathy as she rose hostessingly to her feet. Dominey was by her side in a moment, and his first few words of introduction brought every one around her. She said very little, but what she said was delightfully natural and gracious.

"It has been so kind of you," she said to Caroline, "to help my husband entertain his guests. I am very much better, but I have been ill for so long that I have forgotten a great many things, and I should be a very poor hostess. But I want to make tea for you, please, and I want you all to tell me how many pheasants you have shot."

Ternloff seated himself on the settee by her side.

"I am going to help you in this complicated task," he declared. "I am sure those sugar tongs are too heavy for you to wield alone."

She laughed at him easily.

"But I am not really delicate at all," she assured him. "I have had a very bad illness, but I am quite strong again."

"Then I will find some other excuse for sitting here," he said. "I will tell you all about the high pheasants your husband killed, and about the woodcock he brought down after we had all missed it."

"I shall love to hear about that," she assented. "How much sugar, please, and will you pass those hot muffins to the Princess? And please touch that bell. I shall want more hot water. I expect you are all very thirsty. I am so glad to be here with you."

"I think you are doing very well," she said to Caroline, "to help my husband entertain his guests. I am very much better, but I have been ill for so long that I have forgotten a great many things, and I should be a very poor hostess. is a genuine and solid desire for peace with Germany existing in Downing Street. In every argument I have had, in every concession I have asked for, I have been met with a sincere desire to foster the growing friendship between our countries. I am proud of my work here, Von Ragastein. I believe that I have brought Germany and England nearer together than they have been since the days of the Boer war."

"You are sure, sir," Dominey asked, "that you are not confusing personal popularity with national sentiment?"

"I am sure of it," the Ambassador answered gravely. "Such popularity may have been achieved here has been due to an appreciation of the more healthy state of world politics now existing. It has been my great pleasure to trace the result of my work in a manuscript of memoirs, which some day, when peace is firmly established between our two countries, I shall cause to be published. I have put on record there evidences of the really genuine sentiment in favor of peace which I have found among the present Cabinet."

"I should esteem it an immense privilege," Dominey said, "to be given a private reading of these memoirs."

"That may be arranged," was the suave reply. "In the meantime, Von Ragastein, I want you to reconsider your position here."

"My position is not voluntary," Dominey repeated. "I am acting under orders."

"Freely," the other acquiesced, "but matters have changed very much during the last six months. Even at the risk of offending France, England is showing wonderful pliability with regard to our claims in Morocco. Every prospect of disagreement between our two countries upon any vital matter has now disappeared."

"Unless," Dominey said thoughtfully, "the desire for war should come, not from Downing Street but from Potsdam."

"We serve an honorable master," Ternloff declared sternly, "and he has shown me his mind. His will is for peace, and for the great triumphs to which our country is already entitled by reason of her supremacy in industry, in commerce, in character and in genius. These are the weapons which will make Germany the greatest Power in the world. No empire has ever hewn its way to permanent glory by the sword alone. We have reached our stations, I see. Come to me after the drive is finished, my host. All that I have said so far has been by way of prelude."

The weather had turned drier, the snow was crisp, and a little party of women from the Hall reached the guns before the beaters were through the wood. Caroline and Stephanie both took their places by Dominey's side. The former, however, after a few minutes passed on to Ternloff's stand. Stephanie and Dominey were alone for the first time since their stormy interview in the library.

"Has Maurice been talking to you?" she asked a little abruptly.

"His Excellency and I are, to tell you the truth," Dominey confessed, "in the midst of a most interesting conversation."

"Has he spoken to you about me?"

"Your name has not yet been mentioned."

She made a little grimace. In her wonderful furs and Russian turban that she made rather a striking picture against the background of snow.

"An interesting conversation in which my name has not been mentioned!" she repeated satirically.

"I think you were coming into it before very long," Dominey assured her. "His Excellency warned me that all he had said so far was merely the prelude to a matter of larger importance."

Stephanie smiled.

"Dear Maurice is so diplomatic," she murmured. "I am perfectly certain he is going to begin by remonstrating with you for your shocking treatment of me."

Their conversation was interrupted for a few minutes by the sport. Dominey called the faithful Middleton to his side for a further supply of cartridges. Stephanie bided her time, which came when the beaters at last emerged from the wood.

"Shocking," Stephanie repeated, reverting to their conversation, "is the mildest word in my vocabulary which I can apply to your treatment of me. Honestly, Leopold, I feel bruised all over in side. My pride is humbled."

"It is because you look at the matter only from a feminine point of view," Dominey persisted.

"And you," she answered in a low tone, "once the fondest and the most passionate of lovers, only from a political one. You think a great deal of your country Leopold. Have I no claims upon you?"

"Upon Everard Dominey, none," he insisted. "When the time comes, and Leopold von Ragastein can claim all that is his right, believe me, you will have no cause to complain of coldness or dilatoriness. He will have only one thought, only one hope—to end the torture of these years of separation as speedily as may be."

The strained look passed from her face. Her tone became more natural.

"But, dear," she pleaded, "there is no need to wait. Your Sovereign gives you permission. Your political chief will more than endorse it."

"I am on the spot," Dominey replied, "and believe me I know what is safest and best. I cannot live as two men and keep my face steadfast to the world. The Prince, however, has not spoken to me yet. I will hear what he has to say."

Stephanie turned a little laughingly away.

"You are putting me in the position of a suppliant!" she exclaimed. "Tonight we must have an understanding."

The little party moved on all together to another cover. Rosamund had joined them and hung on to Dominey's arm with delight. The brisk walk across the park had brought color to her cheeks. She walked with all the free and vigorous grace of a healthy woman. Dominey found himself watching her, as she deserted him a little later on to stand by Ternloff's side, with a little thrill of tangled emotions. He felt a touch on his arm. Stephanie, who was passing with another of the guns, paused to whisper in his ear:

"There might be a greater danger—one that has evaded even your cautious mind—in overplaying your part."

Dominey was taken possession of by Caroline on their walk to the next stand. She planted herself on a shooting stick by his side and commenced to take him roundly to task.

"My dear Everard," she said, "you are one of the most wonderful examples of the reformed rake I ever met! You have even acquired respectability. For heaven's sake, don't disappoint us all!"

"I seem to be rather good at that," Dominey observed a little drearily.

"Well, you are the master of your own actions, are you not?" she asked. "What I want to say in plain words, don't go and make a fool of yourself with Stephanie."

"I have not the least intention of doing anything of the sort."

"Well, she has! Mark my words, Everard, I know that woman. She is clever and brilliant and anything else you like, but for some reason or other she has set her mind upon you. She looks at dear little Rosamund as though she hadn't a right to exist. Don't look so sorry for yourself. You must have encouraged her."

Dominey was silent. Fortunately, the exigencies of the next few minutes demanded it. His cousin waited patiently until there came a pause in the shooting.

"Now let me hear what you have to say for yourself, sir? So far as I can see, you've been quite sweet to your wife, and she adores you. If you want to have an affair with the Princess, don't begin it here. You'll have your wife ill again if you make her jealous."

"My dear Caroline, there will be no affair between Stephanie and me. Of that you may rest assured."

"You mean to say that this is altogether on her side then?" Caroline persisted.

"You exaggerate her demeanor," he replied, "but even if what you suggest were true, I am not saying that you encourage her much, because I don't believe you do. All I want to point out is that, having really brought your wife back almost to health, you must be extraordinarily and wonderfully careful. If you want to talk nonsense with Stephanie, do it in Belgrave Square."

Dominey was watching the gyrations of a falling pheasant. His left hand was stretched out towards the cartridge bag which Caroline was holding. He clasped her fingers for a moment before he helped himself.

"You are rather a dear," he said. "I would not do anything to hurt Rosamund for the world."

"If you can't get rid of your old tricks altogether and must flirt," she remarked, "well, I'm always somewhere about. Rosamund wouldn't mind me, because there are a few grey hairs in my sandy ones. And here comes your man across the park—looks as though he had a message for you. So long as nothing has happened to your cook, I feel that I could face ill tidings with composure."

Dominey found himself watching with fixed eyes the approach of his rather sad-faced manservant through the snow. Parkins was not dressed for such an enterprise, nor did he seem in any way to relish it. His was the stern march of duty, and, curiously enough, Dominey felt from the moment he caught sight of him that he was in some respects a messenger of Fate. Yet the message which he delivered, when at last he reached his master's side, was in no way alarming.

"A person of the name of Miller has arrived here, sir," he announced. "From Norwich. He is, I understand, a foreigner of some sort, who has recently landed in this country. I found it a little difficult to understand him, but his Highness's maid conversed with him in German, and I understand that he either is or brings you a message from a certain Doctor Schmidt, with whom you were acquainted in Africa."

The warning whistle blew at that moment, and Dominey swung around and stood at attention. His behavior was perfectly normal. He let a hen pheasant pass over his head, and brought down a cock from very nearly the limit distance. He reloaded before he turned to Parkins.

"Is this person in a hurry?" he said.

"By no means, sir," the man replied. "I told him that you would not be back until three or four o'clock, and he is quite content to wait."

Dominey nodded.

"Look after him yourself then, Parkins," he directed. "We shall not be shooting late today. Very likely I will send Mr. Seaman back to talk to him."

The man raised his hat respectfully and turned back towards the house. Caroline was watching her companion curiously.

"Do you find many of your acquaintances in Africa look you up, Everard?" she asked.

"Except for Seaman," Dominey replied, looking through the barrels of his gun, "who really does not count because we crossed together, this is my first visitor from the land of fortune. I expect there will be plenty of them by and by, though. Colonials have a wonderful habit of sticking to one another."

ORANGE COUNTY NEWS

EL MODENA

EL MODENA, Feb. 6.—The revival services which were in progress here for three weeks closed last Sunday night. There were many in attendance from other places. Garden Grove, Orange, East Whittier, Huntington Park and Yorba Linda were represented at different times. Much good was accomplished. The Marshburns, of Loverne, sister and brother of Douglas Marshburn, were guests of their brother, Douglas and Sylvester, and attended the revival services.

Mrs. Will McClure, who has been the houseguest of her cousin for the past two weeks, has returned to Whittier. She may return to her home near Spokane, Washington, if the weather here is still unfavorable to her going to Imperial to visit relatives. Mrs. Crist and Mrs. McClure had not met for 45 years and many old times were talked over and the time sped on all too rapidly.

Mrs. Sylvester Marshburn is teaching school in the absence of Mrs. Crowell, on account of the serious illness and death of her sister, following a mastoid operation.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Crist and Mrs. M. M. Bolton went to Whittier Wednesday to take Mrs. McClure to her nephew's. They also visited the Otises of East Whittier. Mr. Otis is much more fortunate than most of his neighbors in not suffering so severely from the freeze of Friday night. Lemons and oranges came through but his solar heater did not fare so well. It froze and burst.

Mr. Law has been entertaining his mother for some time, and all went to the Kansas picnic, and they finally arrived home close to the midnight hour by way of the electric car, by way of Watts and Santa Ana and Orange.

Mr. and Mrs. Reywick, who have been camping since last October at Mr. John Mapson's, started for the home journey last Wednesday. They will spend about three weeks on the road visiting through Texas and other places. Their destination is Kansas. Neighbors who had become acquainted with them were loath to see them start back on account of the weather conditions. Little Floyd's playmates miss him and his dog "Trippy."

Mrs. Crist was ill with a very sore thumb last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Flint and daughter, Hazel and Neva, visited Mrs. Fiss, of Orange, Wednesday evening.

A large car turned over in front of the Paularino school house while trying to avoid striking a bus which had stopped to unload passengers. The car struck the soft ground on the side of the road and rolled over on its side. No damage was done and no one was hurt.

Mr. and Mrs. Jamison and daughter, Esther, went to Oxnard Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Dudley, of Santa Ana, visited Sunday with J. A. Shiffer.

Mr. and Mrs. Flint, Leonard and Hazel, motored to Newport Wednesday.

W. C. T. U. HEARS TALK ON LAW ENFORCEMENT

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Feb. 6.—Deputy District Attorney D. G. Wetlin, of Santa Ana, spoke before the W. C. T. U. here at the regular meeting on "Law Enforcement." In his opening remarks he referred to a beautiful structure amply supported by massive pillars. He said the Constitution of the United States is such a structure and that the eighteenth amendments are the pillars which uphold it. If one pillar were destroyed, he said, the whole structure might collapse.

He said it is the duty of every good citizen to spread the propaganda of law enforcement at all times, especially among the young. He emphasized imprisonment for law-breakers, instead of fines.

The meeting opened with singing "He Lifted Me," followed by prayer by the Rev. E. J. Harlow. The latter part of the meeting was given over to the Willard Memorial service.

Mrs. H. A. Bowman sang very sweetly the last words of Frances E. Willard, "How Beautiful to Be With God." Refreshments were served by the ladies of the Christian church.

Both cars were damaged in the collision.

SAYS FALSE HISTORY TAUGHT CHILDREN

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Expressing conviction that school children are not learning the truth about United States history, Alvin Owsley of Indianapolis, national director of the American Legion, appeared as a witness today at the investigation conducted by Commissioner of Accounts Hirschfeld into histories studied in public schools.

"The country is at the cross-roads between half Americanism and un-Americanism and the time has come to mold the true spirit of Americanism," said Mr. Owsley. "The place to begin is with the children."

Charles Grant Miller of Staten Island named school histories which he termed pro-British. Some of them, he said, belittled heroic characters, inspiring incidents and vital principles.

One taught that both John Hancock and his father were snugglers, he said.

The children made snowballs and a snowman, enjoying their first snow storm to the full, except that their hands got so cold.

Tiring of snowballing they went inside and ate candy and sugar. As the wind did not blow it proved to be the warmest and most pleasant storm of the season so far.

ORPHANS IN LONG HIKE ACROSS FROZEN WILDS

FORT WILLIAMS, Ont., Feb. 6.—Six little Indian children, who left the frozen bodies of their father and mother in the northern trapping wilderness, today reached Watcom on the Canadian government rail.

After a fortnight of tramping over snow-covered ground, the five younger children, ranging upward from a baby of a few months, were brought back by their fourteen-year-old brother and a neighbor.

Their father, Atchimo Nan Tuche, trapper, and their mother both died of influenza in the family's woodland hut on Friday, January 18. That day the father called Atchimo the oldest boy, to his bedside, told him the end was near, gave him $1,200, the fruits of his trapping, and bade him care for his brothers and sisters. There was little food in the home.

Unable to bury the bodies, Atchimo left them in the shack with the five other children while he set out on snowshoes to fetch the nearest neighbor, thirty miles away. Two days later Atchimo came back with John Hingosh, the neighbor. The five hungry children were chewing raw moose flesh for nourishment. They had burned most of the furniture to keep from freezing.

The bodies of their parents were frozen stiff.

The younger children were packed on the dog sled by Hingosh and Atchimo, who then began the long march to Watcom, where they were fed and given medical aid.

It is feared the baby will die.

"Like to Like"—from this old adage is evolved "Saturday Night" the Cecil B. De Mille film-production, which opened at the Temple yesterday for a week's run.

It is a custom-made scenario by Jeanie Macpherson, who has put the scalpel of her genius on various phases of modern life and the result, under the direction of de Mille, is an exotic, colorful production. It has all the crash and tingle of an old-time melodrama, with a breath-taking rescue on a lofty trestle when a train hits an automobile, and a spectacular tenement fire. It has a lot of other things, too—just about all the ingredients that one has learned to look for in a de Mille-Macpherson film—including gorgeous gowns.

In fact, "Saturday Night" might be termed a "gown" picture and some of them are as novel as next year's style.

And there is a gorgeous, Halloween bathing scene into which comes a witch riding on a broomstick. And there are several references to bathing in the course of the picture that makes one think it is too bad to waste such a corking title as "Saturday Night" on a production that does not center about bathtubs and bathing!

What the picture really sets forth is entertainment to prove that oil and water does not mix—that in selecting partners for game of matrimony like must choose like if there is to be true happiness.

In this phase of the production, the action of the characters fairly throb with the age-old primitive instincts that drive every man and woman on to their fate, whether they live in Fifth avenue or on the Eastside. And there is delicious satire, too, in the delineation of the plot, as, for instance, in the scenes where the tenement people are shocked at the Fifth avenue women smoking and the latter are horrified at the gum-chewing proclivities of the former.

Leatrice Joy as the Fifth-avenue girl who breaks her engagement with a millionaire, played by Conrad Nagel, to marry her chauffeur (Jack Mower) and Edith Roberts as the laundress's daughter, who marries the millionaire, both do effective acting in keeping with the de Mille standard. Jack Mower does some good work and Conrad Nagel, always to be depended upon to give a good performance, handles a difficult role with delicate artistry.

From the interest shown in yesterday's screening of "Saturday Night" it would seem it is destined to fill the Temple to its capacity throughout the week.

"DON'T TELL LIES"

THE CAST

Cullen Dale... Wallace Reid

Marian Westover... Gloria Swanson

Jessica Ramsey... Dorothy Cummings

Mrs. Morgan... Genevieve Blinn

If a man lets two women battle over him—he'll have a good time for a while—and if he's lucky enough to have an unselfish man friend, maybe he'll come out all right—that's one of the things to be learned from "Don't Tell Everything," the picture which came to the West End yesterday for a run of six days. Another is—

The woman is wise who refrains from wooing, however sweethearts to do the love-making.

The production features Wallace Reid, Gloria Swanson and Elliott Dexter, with Dorothy Cummings in a good supporting role. The headlines perform their usual tricks and go through their usual mannerisms in delineating the characters. The fans seem to like their tricks, however, and that's all that counts, of course.

There is a good deal of film devoted to a polo game and there are several other feet of film devoted to beautiful outdoor landscape, which is refreshing.

The story has to do with a man who lied to the girl to whom he was engaged and to whom he is later secretly married. Lying seemed to prove beneficial when he was appealing to the girl to marry him so he lied and lied and lied, giving the well-known Ananias eight-sevenths of a mile start and beating him at the tape—until the girl about whom he lied appeared, and then—

The story carries a good bit of satire on engagements. There are scenes that are reminiscent of scenes in "The Affairs of Anatol," although this picture was directed by Sam Wood. As in "Anatol," Elliott Dexter is the guide, philosopher and friend of Gloria and Wally and it is he who gets Wally out of the mess into which his lies have plunged him.

Other interesting films appear on the same program among them a very funny comedy which is as the title says—"the spice of the program." It is a travesty on camp-life.

"The Secret of the Hills" starring Antonio Moreno, which opened at the Princess yesterday, is an unusual story, full of action and based on the original novel by William Garret entitled "The Secret of the Hills" and published by Jarrold's, London.

Antonio Moreno's handsome features and fiery Latin temperament are admirably suited to this romantic story of London and the hills of Scotland.

Spurred on by a young English girl he has met under unusual circumstances, the hero seeks to find for her a treasure hidden in the Scottish hills through a cryptogram found in her uncle's effects. A group of crooks have the same object. The tale has been elaborately produced, including many spectacular sets. The London fog scenes, the Chinese restaurant, the cave scenes and those laid in Scotland being particularly impressive.

The unusual twists in the story are of a nature that hold the attention until the final climax.

"The Secret of the Hills" is to be screened again tonight.

POLY B. V. D. BOYS MAKE EXCELLENT SHOWING IN EVENT DESPITE DEFEAT

Hollywood Athletes Win Over Santa Ana In Closely Contested Track Clash at Film Town; Finley, Messing and McFadden Local Stars

By MILES CROOKSHANK

Hollywood High's track team proved to be too hard a nut for Poly's cinder pushers to crack, when they secured a 63 to 50 victory in the first track meet of the year, held at Hollywood Saturday.

Although the meet resulted in a failure so far as a victory was concerned, the showing that the locals made was a decided success. Dope was spilled by Poly in almost every event and up to the last few minutes it was anybody's meet.

The coaches chose not to give out the time of the race.

Earl Jabs sprung the first surprise of the afternoon by capturing first place in the shotput, heaving it 41 feet 2 inches. Houghland, a freshman, sprung the next by putting the shot well over 40 feet and tying Douglas of Hollywood for second place.

The next unscheduled event was that of Bowers winning the high jump with a leap of 5 feet 6 1/2 inches. He surprised himself as well as the spectators, as this is about four inches higher than he had ever jumped previously.

Messing was the big star of the day. Although this was the first time he had run a flight of hurdles this season, he entered the low sticks and finished from six to eight yards ahead of his nearest competitor. His time was unofficially caught at 27 seconds flat, which is tearing some. In addition to this, he took a second in the pole vault, third in the hundred and broad jump and ran a lap in the winning relay team.

Santa Ana finished first, second and third in the 100, and first and second in the 220, Finley taking first in both with McFadden right on his heels. Finley also captured a second place in the broad jump and ran a lap on the relay team, making him high man of the meet with a total of 14 1/4 points. Messing came next with 11 1/4 and McFadden third with 10 1/4. Measles was high for the home team with 10 points.

Weakness in the distances and discus told the tale of Santa Ana's defeat. In these four events only one third place was taken.

SNOW BRICKS ARE MADE BY EDISON

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—A briquetting machine, invented forty years ago by Thomas A. Edison to solve the problem of snow removal from city streets, has been turned over to the American Society of Mechanical Engineers for further development and may soon be seen on New York's streets, it is declared by members of the society.

The invention calls for an automatic briquetting machine to run along snow-covered streets, scoop up snow and turn it out in compressed blocks which could be stacked on the side of the street for removal or until warm weather came.

Edison tried out his invention years ago and found that it worked successfully. Owing to his many other activities, however, he never found time to develop his scheme and for this reason has turned his invention over to the engineer's society.

"I think that a competent engineer could readily figure out an efficient unit for this kind of work," Edison wrote.

ARTICLE WILL GIVE TIPS ON FISHING CONDITIONS IN INYO NATIONAL FOREST

For the benefit of Orange county hunters, fishermen and tourists, The Register will begin publication on this page tomorrow of an article written by L. A. Barrett, former Santa Ana man now in the United States Forest service, describing hunting and fishing conditions in the Inyo National forest. The article will also be of interest to tourists and campers because of the descriptions of the scenic beauties to be found in the Inyo section of the Sierras.

Barrett's article will be of particular interest to fishermen as he tells just the kind of fly to use in the various streams and lakes. He tells where the big fellows are to be found and all that remains for the fisherman to do after reading the article is to go and get 'em.

The article was sent to Victor Walker, local sporting goods dealer, and it is through his interest in the fishing game that The Register is able to give Orange county sportsmen Barrett's story.

Barrett will be remembered by many Santa Ana people. He served in Co. L at the time of the Spanish-American war and later went to the Philippines with the volunteers. He entered the forest service after the war. He is a brother of George Barrett, who is connected with the Southern California Edison company of this city.

REGARDLESS OF END TRAINING CONTINUES

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Scientists have found that many children suffer of complex and generally below par reach this condition through faulty posture. Correct posture has been given special attention by Drs. Floyd Brown and Fritz Tabot, of Boston. The February Delineator magazine tells of these conditions in an article edited by Dr. Alan De Forest Smith, himself a noted authority.

The battleships Wyoming (flagship of the battleship force), Delaware (doomed ship), Arkansas and North Dakota, doomed ship, came here ahead of the fleet flagship Columbia, which called at Charleston and Key West for inspection. Along with the battleship force are auxiliaries and train, and eighteen destroyers from Charleston, S. C.

"Pep" is the watchword. Jones believes in action for ships and men, and here in the isolation of Guantanamo, with nothing to distract attention, he is putting the vessels and their crews through torpedo practice, maneuvers, target practice, tactical lectures, besides undertaking a system of sport and physical culture intended to put punch into every last man of the great gray fleet.

For the marines accompanying, there is special drill in landing parties, short drills, rifle practice and so on.

STANFORD PLANS TO SPEND $14,000 FOR TRACK IMPROVEMENT

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Feb. 6.—Complete track and field equipment will be installed in the Stanford stadium this spring, at a cost of $14,000, according to engineers' estimates submitted to the board of athletic control last week.

The track proper will be excavated to a depth of twelve inches and filled in first with rice mats. On top of this, eastern hard coal cinders will be placed.

Jumping and vaulting pits, shot and discus circles, will be prepared along the sides and ends of the football playing field, and are not to tear up the gridiron turf in any way.

DIG UP HIDDEN TREASURE IN ENGLAND

LONDON, Feb. 6.—There is talk of draining the Wash and turning it into fertile farm land. If this were done there is just a chance that the treasure of King John might be recovered, for we know that somewhere in that great sandy estuary lie his golden crown, his jewels, and his treasure chests.

There is another royal treasure lying hidden in some rocky chasm in the mountains of Wales. It is that of Edward II, which he hid in the year 1326 when fleeing from his victorious Queen Isabella through the wilds of Glamorganshire. So securely was it hidden that the search made for it was vain.

Why do we spend thousands in fitting out expeditions to pirate islands in tropic seas when the soil of our own country is full of buried gold? From Roman times right down to the days of Charles II, it was the common practice to bury one's savings at the first hint of danger. Why, Mr. Pepps himself, when alarmed by the threat of a Dutch invasion, hurried down to his father's house in Huntingdonshire and there buried all his wealth. In his "Diary" we read of his agonies of mind for the safety of his guineas.

Some few years ago there was a fire in the house near Beachy Head, and, walking afterwards through the charred stems, a man stumbled upon a hoard of 2000 Roman coins, which had been lying there ever since their thrifty owner had hidden them, a period of perhaps 1600 years. Another Roman hoard of 1600 coins was plowed up six inches under the turf near Lavernock, in South Wales; and at Croydon, where a water main, a workman drove his pick into an earthenware pot containing 3700 Roman coins of a date about 350 A. D.

At Whaddon Chase 1200 gold pieces were found bearing the head of King Cymbeline, who reigned B. C. 55; and near Leighton Buzzard a plowman turned up a pot full of ancient British coins, each the size of a five shilling piece.

Every old battlefield is worth searching for treasure. Some twenty years ago a farmer found a clay pot on the site of the terrible struggle of Bannockburn which held 2000 silver pennies.

Such finds are made much more frequently than most people imagine, for a rule the finder keeps his mouth shut. For this secrecy our iniquitous law of "treasure trove" is to blame. As an instance in point; a gentleman who discovered some invaluable Roman relics in the fastnesses of the Radnorshire hills, and who was honest enough to hand them over to the crown, received from the treasury a sum of $350 as commission. One alone of the relics he discovered, a massive gold ring set with onyx, was worth more than $1000.

Here is a case where honesty could hardly be called the best policy.

THE BABY'S FUTURE. "I think the baby is going to be a dancer."

"Why so?" "She keeps examining her toes." — Louisville Courier-Journal.

In first attempting to correct their posture, almost invariably throw out the chest, but at the same time thrust the abdomen forward, thus increasing the curve in the lower back and making the condition worse. It is better at first to stress the holding in of the chin and lower abdomen and to reserve the emphasis upon the position of the chest until later. It is not sufficient to give a child a lesson in posture once a day and then forget about it for twenty-four hours. Like religion, it should be practiced all the time.

SANTA ANA K. OF C. NINE TRIMS ANAHEIM

Catholic Teams Stage Close Game at Delhi; Plan New League

Orange county Knights of Columbus broke into the baseball limelight yesterday when the Santa Ana council defeated the Anaheim organization, 11 to 8 in a game played at Delhi.

It was the first appearance of the Casey in baseball uniforms, and the curtain raiser was pronounced a success from every standpoint. The game between the Mother Colony Catholics and the Santa Ana knights was well fought and well played. Considering the fact that it was the first game for both teams, the total of but five errors chalked up among the eighteen players was creditable. Kelly and Young were high scorers for Santa Ana with two runs apiece to their credit.

Roelands, Santa Ana third sacker, hammered out the only home run of the game.

The local council announces the formation of a baseball league in which all the councils of Southern California are to take part. Games in the league program will be played in the various cities, with Santa Ana receiving its share.

COULDN'T WRITE: WILL GOOD

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 6.—Spelling out the words of a codicil to his will by pointing to the letters of a printed alphabet held in front of him, Colonel John Murphy, who was so affected by paralysis that he could not write, materially changed the document. It was contested in court here and today Judge Thomas P. Trimble sustained both the will and codicil. The estate was appraised at $200,000.

THANKS TO THE LIONS CLUB

Striking example of enterprise, civic pride, home loyalty and the true spirit of the Lions, is the Lions Club section of The Register to be issued next Thursday in honor of the local club's Charter Day.

The primary purpose of this publication probably is to let the community know who and what the Lions are, but undoubtedly the committee in charge of the work fully appreciates its community advertising value. There are 52 charter members of the Santa Ana Lions Club, the portrait of all of whom will appear in the Lions Club section of The Register. This alone will result in the sending out by mail of several hundred extra copies of the paper to friends and relatives of the members. Other hundreds of papers will be mailed, after being read, by our regular subscribers—friends and acquaintances of the Lions. Also, an order has been received for 500 copies from the Lions International of Chicago, for use in extension work. Altogether probably 2000 copies of next Thursday's Register will be spread broadcast over the country, resulting in advertising worth thousands of dollars to Santa Ana and Orange County.

This publicity enterprise is entirely to the credit of the Lions Club—initiated and carried through by one of the most enthusiastic and efficient committees we have ever seen engaged in similar work. The Register has had nothing to do with it except to afford friendly and appreciative co-operation.

The Lions Club is not primarily a boost organization, but this enterprise will thoroughly demonstrate that there are many opportunities for all clubs and societies, as well as for individuals, to do some very effective community advertising.

HOW JOHN D. MADE MONEY

Here is a bit of information for those who want to emulate John D. Rockefeller.

It isn't necessary to go into the oil business. This phase of the "Oil King's" history has been exaggerated. Rockefeller got his start in oil, but it was not oil that made his immense fortune for him.

"Contrary to the general opinion," says a business man connected with the Rockefeller interests, "Mr. Rockefeller hasn't made as much money in oil as Mr. Carnegie made in steel."

Carnegie, then, really had a better chance than Rockefeller, starting with his basic fortune. And why did he not multiply that fortune as his more famous contemporary has done?

The answer is, because Carnegie was not an investor, and that Rockefeller, as the business man quoted above says, had "a genius for investments." He also had a genius for organization; but so did Carnegie. It was the shrewd investment of the money he made in his own special line of development that made him the richest man in the world.

Investment is a great game. The world today is full of opportunities as great, perhaps, as any that Rockefeller ever had. It is a legitimate field, for money in this capitalistic age is as necessary for industry as are labor and materials. Money planted and well tended will grow and multiply. An investor starting in a small way, and saving and expanding his investments wisely year after year, may accomplish much. Yet the American people fool away a billion dollars a year in foolish or fraudulent schemes. Money that comes hard they let go lightly, at the beck of a glib salesman. Investment is to be taken seriously, as Rockefeller took it.

BEER IN POLAND

The new republic of Poland, along with its other troubles, is wrestling with the liquor problem. It has adopted a policy that is pretty near to prohibition.

There is to be no traffic in whisky and other strong drinks. Beer is to be restricted to an alcoholic content of 2 1/2 per cent. The saloon is forbidden to exist. Cafes and restaurants are licensed to sell this week beer provided their number does not exceed one to each 2,500 population. Proprietors are subject to arrest if there is any drunkenness on their premises. All liquor stocks are taxed 20 per cent of their value.

This sounds drastic, for Poland. It is another evidence of the continuance and growing severity of the dry movement which gained its first great momentum during the war. The 2 1/2 per cent rule for beer is of special interest in this country. It recalls the famous 2.75 per cent laws enacted by some of the states, but rendered ineffective by federal action. A good many Americans seem to think that something like the Polish policy will be adopted here, sooner or later.

AMERICAN NEWSPAPERS

There is always plenty of adverse criticism of American newspapers. Now and then some one with authority praises them and induces the public to concede a little in their favor.

A member of the British delegation at the Washington arms conference has recently returned to England. Soon after his arrival he spoke in public on the subject of American characteristics and customs. Of the press of this country he said:

"The obsession of American newspapermen for accuracy is almost astounding.

"Americans can never plead that they are not enlightened on changes of policy, for they have an exceptionally well-informed press."

The newspaper people themselves are probably too busy to pause long to note or rejoice over this tribute to them. But other citizens could profitably give it a little thought before registering their next kick against their favorite papers.

WEATHER BY WIRELESS

The Postoffice Department is now sending out weather reports by wireless telephone from Washington. The field of operations is limited, so far, to a comparatively small area. It embraces the District of Columbia, Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia, eastern Pennsylvania and Ohio. It is also experimental. After a trial of two weeks, however, the practical nature of this service is considered established. It will probably be extended to cover the entire country before long.

The method is simple. The official reports, compiled by the experts of the Department of Agriculture, are sent out promptly at 10 a. m. and 9:30 p. m., the sender using a wave-length of 1,160 meters. All that anyone has to do, to take advantage of it, is to have a wireless telephone receiving apparatus, tune it to this particular wave-length and "listen in" at the time set. The instruments are on the market and can be bought for little more than the cost of a good Victrola.

Laws and Enforcements

—Nevada City Union

Fifteen thousand new laws are put upon statute-books in the United States every year, it is estimated. This is too many. The tendency to legislate too much to enact large numbers of laws, in many instances of very good quality—is an evil in this country.

There comes from Chicago announcement that only one murderer in forty-five in that city pays the death penalty. And yet the law of that state prescribes death as the punishment for murder. Only one in four murderers in that state are even indicted. Similar bad laxities—though perhaps not quite so glaring in degree exist in other states.

Now, what Illinois needs, and what other states need, is not more laws on the books of statutes, but a far more rigid and successful enforcement of the laws they already have. Illinois or any other state might pass laws providing for burning murderers at the stake. But unless such laws were enforced with vigor they soon would cease to have terrors for murderers or potential murderers. Cunning criminals look upon loosely-enforced laws as something with which to gamble. If, for example, only one murderer in forty-four in Illinois is put to death, the shrewd criminal, bent upon murder, takes a gambling chance of being one of the forty-three who escape the extreme penalty. The law has terrors for the criminal only when its operations against each and every guilty one are sure, and when its penalties are exemplarily severe.

Pershing's Modesty

—San Bernardino Sun

When the naval row over the award of war decorations is recalled the refusal of General Pershing to accept either a medal of honor or a distinguished service cross is especially notable.

Having declined the original proposal to honor him with a medal of honor for his personal courage in leading his men against the Moros in 1913 the army board hoped he would accept the lesser honor of the distinguished service cross and arranged to have the Secretary of War bestow it at a surprise party. The general heard of it and forestalled the intention, declaring he "did not consider his action measured up to the high standards set by the American Expeditionary Force, and that he had suspended hundreds of recommendations for the cross based on acts more deserving than his own."

It would be well if awards of military and naval decorations were always premised on the exalted standard held by General Pershing. Lack of proper discrimination in such matters must cheapen the award, which should always be guarded against. At the same time it is a remarkable commentary upon the process of military routine that General Pershing's act in the campaign against the Moros should have had to wait so long for the proposed recognition.

Health Education

—Riverside Press

That education is one essential to the development of public health is emphasized in the bulletin of the California State Board of Health. A law, a health officer and a placard tacked on the door are not enough to stop a contagious disease. The whole community needs to know something about the cause of the disease and about preventive measures as well as about treatment and cure.

One city health officer maintains that 95 per cent of diphtheria in this country could be prevented if public ignorance could only be changed to knowledge of the protective methods to be used against it.

There are many evidences that education in public health is making steady progress. Local health departments and officials are nearly always to be found on the side of education and prevention. Other welfare agencies and public schools are tarrying on the program with a real spirit of co-operation and an amazing amount of ingenuity in popularizing the subject.

Statistics have been presented which show that all this work is bearing fruit in the actual decrease in mortality rates in general and in certain specific diseases which have been the subject of concentrated campaigns.

Christianizing the World

—San Francisco Chronicle

In the task of Christianizing the world the all-important thing is to make Christians—not particular kinds of Christians.

So declared an eminent churchman a few days ago.

He asserted the aim and purpose of the church should be to develop Christian character rather than to encourage sectarian views.

Commenting on individual work of the various churches he said the greatest good could be accomplished only when these churches came to realize that all effort must be made with due regard for the effort of other Christians.

Unquestionably the world needs the influence of the church. As to how that influence can best be exerted the layman is in no position to say.

It is the business of all churches to establish as nearly as may be the kingdom of God on earth and it would seem to be the part of logic that efforts should be concentrated where they will count most toward a Christian world.

Harness The Colorado

—Long Beach Press

The fact that Herbert C. Hoover has been elected permanent chairman of the Colorado river commission is guarantee that the great project which this commission has under advisement will be put through successfully. Mr. Hoover is an engineer of world-wide fame. He can grasp the vastness of this enterprise. He comprehends the magnitude of this work. He also is capable of conceiving of the immensity of the benefits that surely will be derived from the building of the Boulder dam, the impounding of waters sufficient to irrigate millions of acres of land now fallow and the generating of millions of horsepower of hydro-electric energy.

No project of such magnitude as this has ever been undertaken in this country. The federal government, from present indications, will construct the great dam. Mr. Hoover is splendidly fitted to supervise this mammoth work. Its importance to the Southwest in particular and the whole West in general is almost beyond estimate.

Today's Talk

—by George Matthew Adams

FEELINGS

Feelings are frailer than the most delicate china. Every time you hurt somebody's feelings you leave an ineffaceable scar.

It is better to be kind than to be great—but it is good to be both. And not injuring the feelings of others helps a long, long way toward happiness.

I know there are those who think that one is not made of stern stuff if he lets his feelings get hurt—but I have never yet met anyone who liked to have his feelings hurt. Have you?

The jewel of civilization is to be thoughtful of the other fellow. The cruel World War that has left such a terrible aftermath, came about wholly because too many people wanted what someone else had.

I am always amused at the demand of some fellow for his "rights." Rights! The only rights that should seriously concern any of us are the rights of others. Our own rights will take care of themselves in due time.

No man in history was ever more sorely tried because of his humility and forbearance than Lincoln. Hardly a member of his closest group of advisers but went out of his way to hurt the feelings of this patient man. Look at the deeply lined face for evidence. And no character in history ever came out into the light of the accumulating years with such strength and beauty.

I looked today upon the great statue of Lincoln by St. Gaudens, which stands in Lincoln Park, Chicago. One seems to see written over the whole attitude of that wonderful likeness—"with charity for ALL, and malice toward NONE!"

Before you hurt another's feelings—think. It is well to keep reversing our thoughts, putting ourselves in the place of others.

"There, but for the grace of God, goes John Bunyan," exclaimed the writer of Pilgrim's Progress, as he pointed to a man reeling in drunkenness. We are all born in frailty, each with his weak points. Let us remember that we all belong to the same human family—and be kind.

Worth While Verses

I NEED NOT FEAR

If I live a life that is clean and square,
And I love my fellow-man,
And I lend him a hand to help him bear
His burden whenever I can,
I need not fear what the future holds,
Nor what the reward will be;
For the mighty love that all enfolds
Will most surely care for me.

If I speak a good word of cheer to one
Whose sorrows have borne him down,
And give him new hope to journey on,
And change to a smile his frown,
I shall not dread when the shadows fall,
And the end of life draws near;
For that wondrous love that shelters all
Will drive away my fear.

For my life is measured by what I mete,
And may earn my own reward,
So the love I give makes my heart complete,
And through it I gain the reward;
For whether I dwell in a house by the road,
Or far from the haunts of men,
If only my love makes bright the abode,
No fear shall enter it then.

CHAPTER 262
WILLIE WHISKERS HAS THE HEADACHE
By Harvey Elliott

Willie Whiskers the Goat was getting to feel fairly well at home on the Smith Farm. As soon as he had gotten the Smith family all chased into the house he began to strut around all over the barn-lot to see what was there. He nosed the hen house door open and looked in. The Old Rooster and a couple of his wives were holding a little scratching party in the straw.

Willie Whiskers didn't say a word, but he stood looking in at the door and his whiskers bobbed up and down as he worked his jaws. Now that Old Rooster recognized Whiskers as a perfect stranger, and couldn't see what business he had looking in on their private family affairs.

"Ker-do!" said the Rooster. "And who are you?"

The hens also stopped scratching and stood so still that you couldn't have seen them move. But Old Man Rooster kept on cackling a little faster and a little louder the longer Whiskers looked at him.

It always irritated Willie Whiskers to have anybody stand up and talk back to him like that Old Rooster was doing. Willie stopped chewing and pointed his nose into the hen house like he was taking aim. "Ker-do! Ker-do!" shouted the Rooster at the top of his voice.

Willie Whiskers raised up on his hind feet and gave a long leap through the hen house door and landed right in the place where the scratching party was being held a little before.

There was sure a flapping time around there for a few seconds. The Old Rooster squawked and flapped his wings and flew against the hen house wall nearly hard enough to knock the breath out of him. The two hens flew up on the roost as badly frightened as the Rooster.

Willie Whiskers had scattered that crowd without any trouble, but there were two other hens that were not so easy to handle. They were sitting on their eggs, which were just beginning to hatch. As soon as the Goat landed in the hen house and made such a disturbance, those two hens jumped off their nests and flew at Willie Whiskers with a vengeance. One flew in his face, while the other attacked him in the rear.

Mad? You should have seen that Goat! He lunged at the hen in front so hard that when she got out of the way he butted his head against the wall, while the other was pecking him from behind. Then he turned and made for the one behind and when she hopped aside he butted the boards off on the other side, while the first hen jumped on behind. Those two old hens just kept Willie Whiskers going and coming until they had completely worn him out. He finally gave it up and got out. But he took out something that he didn't take in. It was a splitting headache.

NO. 1—INCOME TAX FACTS

Thousands of letters have reached the Bureau of Internal Revenue relative to changes in revenue legislation. Taxpayers desire to know the benefits to which they are entitled under the revenue act of 1921 by way of increased exemptions, lowered surtaxes, and allowances for deductions for business expenses, losses, contributions, and bad debts.

The purpose of the Bureau of Internal Revenue is to answer the questions presented in a series of newspaper statements, of which this is the first. Taxpayers are advised to preserve the articles as they appear, in order that when they begin preparation of their income-tax returns for the year 1921 they may have before them a comprehensive summary of the requirements of the new revenue act.

To the person of moderate income probably the most important change is in the exemptions or credits.

Under the revenue act of 1921 a married person or head of a family whose net income for 1921 was $5,000 or less is allowed a personal exemption of $2,500. If the net income is more than $5,000, the personal exemption is $2,000. The exemption allowed a married person or head of a family under the revenue act of 1918 was $2,000, regardless of the amount of net income. Exemptions for dependents, also, are increased from $200 to $400. Thus, a married man with three children, whose net income for 1921 was $4,000, will pay this year an income tax of $12. On the same income for 1920 he paid a tax of $56.

Husband and wife living together receive but one personal exemption ($2,500 or $2,000 as the case may be) if they make separate returns, the exemption may be taken by either or divided between them.

Normal Tax
To overcome the disparity in the normal tax in the case of two taxpayers, one of whom is just within the lower exemption of $2,000 (applying to income of more than $5,000) and the other just within the higher exemption of $2,500 (applying to income of $5,000 or less), the law provides that the reduction of the personal exemption for married persons and heads of families from $2,000 to $2,500.

Revenue officers will visit every county in the United States to aid taxpayers in making out their returns. Announcement of their arrival and the location of their offices will be made by collectors through the press. The services heretofore offered city residents will be continued.

In the Long Ago

From the Register Files
February 6, 1908

The chamber of commerce organized for the year as follows: President, Dr. H. S. Gordon; vice-president, H. C. Head; treasurer, First National bank; secretary, J. A. Willson, re-elected; directors, Dr. G. H. Dobson, Asa Vandermast, H. R. Smith, H. B. Heninger, W. W. Wasser, J. A. Timmons. During the past year the chamber received about 2500 letters of inquiry. It fathered the new sugar factory.

J. W. Carlyle, C. S. Crookshank, V. E. Blodgett, P. S. Roper, A. A. Rowley and A. N. Zerman were added to the directorate of the M. and M., making fifteen directors.

The Orange County Medical society met at the home of Dr. Rich in Fullerton last night. Physicians attending from here were Drs. Bruner, Burlew, Barnes, Giddens and Warrily. The average daily circulation of The Register for the past week was 2131 copies, as shown by the affidavit of H. T. Duckett before Ed. Tedford, notary public.

Friends of Mrs. Lucretia Baker in the Ladies Alliance gave her a surprise on her nineteenth birthday. The Rev. Francis Watry presided as toastmaster at a dinner provided in honor of Mrs. Baker.

F. W. Beckwith of Balboa says he is going to plant algaroba trees, natives of Hawaii, at Balboa.

The Rev. John Braun, Episcopal pastor at Orange, died at the Good Samaritan hospital, Los Angeles, yesterday. Mrs. Braun is ill with pneumonia at Everett, Wash.

Died—At Tustin, Mrs. Susan S. Coban, aged 84 years.

Practical Thrift

Ammonia will remove iodine stains.

Use a new shaving brush to grease baking tins.

A well ventilated house is the easiest to heat.

Dental floss makes an excellent string for beads.

All bottles in the medicine cabinet should be carefully marked.

Torn umbrellas can be successfully mended with adhesive plaster.

Vaseline will stop the squeaks of doors, chairs, beds or hinges of any kind.

Add a teaspoonful of vinegar to the rinse water to retain the color in black stockings.

500 to $2,000 in such cases shall not operate to increase the tax which would be payable if the exemption were $2,500 by more than the amount of net income in excess of $5,000. For example, a married man had a net income for 1921 of $5,006. With the benefit of the above provision, his tax, assuming he had no dependents, would be $130.24 ($5,006 less $2,000 equaling $3,006 at 4 per cent). His actual tax is $106.24 ($5,006 less $2,500 equaling $2,506 at 4 per cent, or $100.24, plus $6, the amount by which his net income exceeds $5,000).

There is no change in the exemption of $1,000 granted a single person or a married person not living with husband or wife. Nonresident aliens are allowed a specific exemption of $1,000 regardless of their marital status, and are allowed no exemption for dependents.

The normal tax of 4 per cent on the first $4,000 of net income above the exemptions at 8 per cent on the remaining net income remains unchanged. This applies to citizens and residents of the United States. Alien nonresidents receiving income from sources within the United States are taxed to the full 8 per cent on income from such sources.

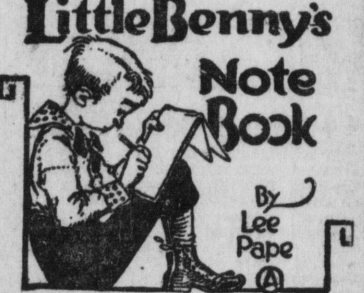

Surtax Rates
Taxpayers are reminded that the surtax rates, which apply only to net income in excess of $5,000, also are unchanged for the year 1921. Letters received by the bureau indicate the impression in the minds of the writers that the lowered surtax rates are applicable to net income for the calendar year 1922. Under the revenue act of 1921, the surtax rates for that year range from 1 per cent on the amount of net income between $5,000 and $6,000 to 65 per cent on the amount of net income in excess of $1,000,000. For the calendar year 1922, the surtax rates range from 1 per cent on the amount of net income between $6,000 and $10,000, to 50 per cent by which the net income exceeds $200,000.

The period for filing returns (if the taxpayer makes return on the calendar year basis) is from January 1 to March 15, 1922. This year, as last, the tax may be paid in full at the time of filing the return, or in four installments, due on or before March 15, June 15, September 15, and December 15. Forms 1040A for incomes of $5,000 and less, and 1040 for incomes in excess of $5,000, will be sent to persons who last year filed returns of 1920 income. Failure to receive a form, however, does not relieve the taxpayer of his obligation to file a return and pay the tax within the time prescribed. Copies of these forms may be obtained at the offices of collectors of internal revenue, branch offices, and banks.

The return, sworn to before a notary or other person authorized to administer an oath, must be filed with the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer lives, or has his principal place of business.

Revenue officers will visit every county in the United States to aid taxpayers in making out their returns. Announcement of their arrival and the location of their offices will be made by collectors through the press. The services heretofore offered city residents will be continued.
